World Hero's Flight Appeals to Imagination of Mexican People
FLIGHT CALMS SUSPICION
Not Official but Good Wishes of Government Attend Young Aviator

Washington—Relations between the United States and Mexico have been so troubled in the last 17 years that there is no disguising the high hopes which everybody in the government here feels with respect to the possibilities of the Lindbergh mission.

For it is a mission, President Coolidge carefully points out that it is not official but that the good wishes of the government attend the youthful aviator. Throughout the government is a feeling that Lindbergh may recover some of the ground lost in the 17 years of misunderstanding. Mexico is a proud nation and sensitive about any implication as to its size or power in the family of nations. Since Ambassador Dwight Morrow went there he has been endeavoring to develop a new understanding. President Calles has reciprocated by inviting the American ambassador to accompany him on his journey so the people may see evidence of the friendly feeling of the Mexican executive toward the United States.

APPEALS TO IMAGINATION
And now Lindbergh, the idol of the world, accepting an invitation from the Mexican president, appeals to the imagination of the Mexican people. Such a non-stop flight, it is conceded by many veteran diplomats, may do more than years of diplomatic notes and formal protestations of friendship.

Lindbergh didn't go beyond Paris, Brussels and London in Europe, notwithstanding the pressing invitation from other countries, for he has gone to any country south of the Rio Grande. His readiness to accept Mexico's invitation was the source of much gratification here for the government didn't feel it had a right to ask him to undertake a hazardous journey in which his life would be risked.

The Pan-American fliers who went on a good will mission to South America accomplished a great deal toward promoting better understanding, but the greatest need has been a development of better relations between the two neighboring nations. At the White House it was stated on behalf of the president that Lindbergh went to encourage aviation in Mexico and elsewhere. It is true that commercial aviation needs aid of this kind and that airports will help Mexico immensely in the development of better communication with the outside world. Indeed, the investment world has been hoping for an opportunity to aid Mexico in promoting her enterprises. Air mail service will supplement the direct long-distance communication recently established.

But above all, an era of good feeling and good will is a prerequisite to good business relations. Mexico has suspected the United States of wishing to suppress her sovereignty and take her territory. The mere thought of this has caused a feeling of hostility between the governments the more this suspicion will be diminished. This, in fact, is the hope of the government as the real accomplishment of the Lindbergh mission.

STATE TO TAKE PART IN BADGER ARSON CASE

MADISON—(AP)—When Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Veile, 50 on trial in Shogomogon for arson, Dec. 19, Assistant Attorney General Arnold will aid in the state's prosecution. It was said at the state insurance and fire marshals' department Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Veile are charged with burning their home, on which there was $2,000 insurance. After the information was made by fire inspectors that the fire might have been of incendiary origin, L. E. Peterson investigated for the state fire marshal, and the arson prosecution resulted.

Take Eighteen Bodies Out Of Ruins In Quebec Fire

Quebec—(AP)—Thirty-one young children, all girls, are known to have lost their lives in the fire which destroyed the Hospice St. Charles orphanage Wednesday night. Eleven have been positively identified.

Quebec—(AP)—Eighteen bodies were recovered Thursday from the fire-swept ruins of the Hospice St. Charles orphanage, with the probability that the death list would mount.

The bodies of 17 children and one woman recovered indicated that they died of suffocation rather than by fire. The walls of the ancient structure collapsed while the fire was at its height Wednesday night, stopping rescue work.

Many stories of heroism were told. One fireman was reported to have rescued 15 children, making repeated trips up and down a ladder. Firemen threw children and nuns from windows into life nets.

The fire, which presumably started from the explosion of a furnace, shot flames up a central flue, creating a draft and carrying the fire throughout the old building.

Although some early estimates had placed the number of dead at 100, from a check made after the confusion had subsided somewhat it was said it was improbable that, providing all the missing were dead, the total death list would number more than 50.

Sixteen of the dead were found in the ruins of one of the dormitories, death in most cases having been due to asphyxiation. Seventeen were children and the other a woman.

The staff of nuns of the Good Shepherd, who conducted the institution, and 371 children were in bed when the fire, believed to have started in the basement, broke out in a dormitory on the second floor. The fire was discovered by Sister St. Therese, who noticed smoke in the corridor and roused the sleeping children and other occupants of the orphanage.

Early in the rescue work a human chain was formed, stretching from the orphanage to a tobacco factory directly across the street as scores of children, many of them half-conscious, were removed from the burning building, their screams mingling with the roar of the flames. They were lifted from one to another of those in the chain to the factory. There doctors and nurses hastily gathered to care for them.

LITTLE CHANCE FOR HELP FOR VIADUCT

Legality of State Aid Up to Attorney General—Consider Highway Rerouting

The city of Appleton will not receive state aid for a Wisconsin-ave viaduct until the legality of such an appropriation has been determined by the state attorney general, it was brought out at a meeting of members of the state highway commission with Mayor A. C. Rybc and members of the city council Thursday. Indications are that there will be a general rerouting of principal highways through the city to relieve traffic congestion and still keep from passing over railroad tracks.

It was pointed out that regardless of what the highway commission had found a few years ago when the project was given approval, and regardless of the railroad commission order for a grade separation, conditions now are such that there is a possibility that state aid would be illegal. It is now claimed that because an increase in the number of residences on the street, the state need not pay part of the improvement.

It also appeared from the attitude of members of the commission that they are far more interested in rerouting highway 41 so that it is not necessary to cross the railroad tracks than they thought the present route down Broadway a few changes in corners was a logical route and that they would suggest rerouting several other highways to other streets.

LORDS APPROVE CHANGE IN CHURCH PRAYERBOOK

LONDON—(AP)—The revised prayerbook of the Church of England has been approved by the house of lords, and Thursday only the sanction of commons was necessary. The revised prayerbook will not replace the one now being used, but may be used as an alternative. Among its provisions is one dropping the word "only" from the marriage service. Other provisions deal with the sacrament of communion.

MEXICO HAILS PEACE ENVOY OF UNCLE SAM

Long Anxiety Reflected in Unbounded Enthusiasm of Roaring Crowds

Mexico City—(AP)—Cheered by crowds that gathered in the streets everywhere, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh Thursday morning paid an official call upon President Calles, who again felicitated him upon his brilliant flight from Washington to Mexico City.

Among the places the American aviator visited were the foreign office, Chapultepec palace and the national museum, at the latter place inspecting the famous Aztec calendar, stone. Everywhere that he went the boyish-looking smiling good-will ambassador was greeted joyfully by Mexico's citizens into whose hearts he has completely won his way.

Mexico City—(AP)—Unbounded enthusiasm prevailed Thursday over the Lone Eagle's flight in fog and over mountains to the halls of the Montezumas.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh completed his flight from Bolling field, to Mexico City in 27 hours and 10 minutes. The tension of that long wait on the sun-baked Valbuena flying field for the airman broken, the surging crowds voiced their relief in mingled shouts of "Viva" and "Bravo." Three hours of apprehension that misfortune had befallen the flier, during which they comforted themselves with the thought that Lindy always arrives, gave place to a delicious demonstration of joy.

The American ambassador, Dwight W. Morrow, looked upon his fellow citizen with pride. "Isn't he a wonderful boy," he exclaimed. "He is perfectly physically, mentally and spiritually."

And while the crowds milled around the embassy shouting for the hero, mechanics at Valbuena field were carefully cleaning the other half of the famous team of "We"—the Spirit of St. Louis. The plane in which

MEYER AWARDED $460 IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Jury Returns Verdict in Damage Suit After Short Deliberation

William F. Meyer was awarded $460 in his suit for $1,000 on Joseph H. Jones by a jury in the upper branch of municipal court Wednesday afternoon. A counter claim for $1,400 filed by Jones against Meyer was disallowed. The case went to the jury at 3:30 and a verdict was reached within 45 minutes. The suit followed a collision between automobiles owned and driven by the two Appleton men on Aug. 28, 1927.

The accident occurred on N. Richmond-st when Meyer stopped his car to park at the curb and Jones crashed into the rear of it. Jones claimed that Meyer was backing up and hereby responsible for the accident. Meyer denied Jones' charges and alleged Jones was driving too fast and that he failed to exercise ordinary precaution.

The case opened before Judge Theodore Berg Wednesday morning.

ELEVEN RUSS LEADERS ARE DETAINED BY U. S.

New York—(AP)—Eleven Russian industrialists were detained at Ellis Island, pending a hearing Thursday under regulations governing admission of persons from the soviet republic. The industrialists, representatives of the soviet economic council of Moscow came to the United States, they said, to confer with American financiers regarding a $40,000,000 concession with the soviet metal trust and to invest probably millions of dollars in agricultural and other machinery.

They were taken from the Berengaria Wednesday because they were without passports due to the non-recognition of the soviet government by the United States.

REPUBLICANS KEEP CONTROL IN SENATE

Moses Is Re-elected President Pro Tem—House Opposes Mellon on Revenue Bill

Washington—(AP)—The Republicans Thursday retained full control of the senate by re-electing Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, as president pro tempore; Edward P. Thayer, of Indiana, as secretary; and David S. Barry, of Rhode Island, as sergeant-at-arms.

The votes were by strict party division, that for Moses being 42 to 33, for Thayer 43 to 41, and Barry 42 to 40. Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, voted with the Republicans as did the group of Independents from the western states whose demands upon the party leaders for consideration of their legislative program had been favorably received.

The house again has lifted its voice to maintain its claim to supremacy in the drafting of revenue legislation.

Crossing directly the wishes of the administration and particularly those of Secretary Mellon, the house has refused to retain the sales tax on automobiles in the revenue measure now under consideration.

By a vote of 166 to 142 the house Wednesday eliminated the automobile tax from the bill of the Democrats opposing the recommendations of Mr. Mellon and a majority of the ways and means committee.

It was estimated the auto tax repeal, which is subject to a final vote upon passage of the entire bill after its consideration by sections, would reduce the treasury of $22,000,000 in revenue.

With loss of feeling, the house approved the bill's provision exempting admissions of one dollar or less from the 10 per cent tax, another reducing from 10 to 5 per cent the levy on club dues and a third increasing from 10 to 25 per cent the tax on prize fight tickets of $5 or more.

G. O. P. URGED TO ACTION IN KEYNOTE TALK

Janesville Editor Says Whole Nation Watches Wisconsin Conference

Milwaukee—(AP)—Calling the progressive party dead, declaring that the 1924 Republican platform pledge regarding farm relief must be "recoined into action" and designating President Coolidge's administration as the stabilizer of the world, Stephen Bolles, editor of the Janesville Gazette Thursday delivered the keynote address of the Republican state meeting here.

As spokesman for his party in the Wisconsin convention, he described this meeting as thoroughly legal, "no primary election law however shall be able under constitutional provisions to abridge the right of peaceful assembly now or hereafter or to act as a stoppage against conference convention and communication of citizens for the purpose of expressing opinion on governmental affairs."

He then described the meeting as one, which the participants "are in harmony in most part no all the great questions of administration and legislation which the ideal and the aspirations of the leadership of the party." Mr. Bolles declared that "if we differ it is the difference of friends, not of enemies. If we object we do not abuse, denounce and vituperate but present arguments for our own position."

SOVIET MINISTER GIVEN PASSPORTS

Shanghai—(AP)—The nationalist government Thursday handed the soviet consul general at Shanghai his passports. He was requested to leave nationalist territory within a week. The passports were given the soviet envoy by Quoi Tai-Chi, nationalist vice minister of foreign affairs.

The action was in line with the recent announced policy of the nationalists under Chiang Kai-Shek to remove alleged Russian influence in Chinese affairs.

In addition to severing diplomatic relations, the nationalists also broke off commercial relations, demanding the closure of Russian commercial agencies, including the Russian State Bank and the volunteer fund.

Quoi Tai-Chi, in issuing the request to the Russians to leave nationalist territory, was following instructions issued by the Nanking nationalist government.

The official mandate of the Nanking government attributed, as one cause for the state of affairs, the uprising in Canton on Dec. 11, which the government says was the result of communists using the Canton Russian consulate as a base to direct operations.

LIFER AT WAUPUN WILL APPEAL FROM SENTENCE

Washburn—(AP)—His appeal backed by members of the American league of Washburn, Charles Deerpok, who has served two years of a life sentence for murder, will ask the state supreme court for a new writ of error. Deerpok was convicted of the murder of Guy Hurley, also known as O'Neill, who was killed at a summer resort in Washburn in June, 1925. The body was found in the grass with several bullet holes.

At the instance of his soldier friends the case is now to be appealed. Deerpok, a World war veteran, said, Hurley, more than 25 inches of snow had fallen, the heaviest in the history of the weather bureau. Bismarck, N. D., farther west, reported more than 30 inches, with winds piling up mountains of drift. At Fargo, the schools were ordered closed Thursday.

MINNESOTA CITIES ARE GRIPPED BY SNOW STORM

St. Paul, Minn.—(AP)—Another blizzard swept into Minnesota from North Dakota Thursday, only a week after one severe storm had caused havoc in this state. In the vicinity of Fargo, N. At Fargo, the schools were ordered closed Thursday.

BORAH, NORRIS HEFLIN ALSO UP IN INQUIRY

All Four Deny Being Involved in Publisher's "Slush Fund" Charges

LEADERS BACK ACCUSED
Senate Chiefs Express Belief That Their Colleagues Are Guiltless

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator Norris of Nebraska, from his sick room, Thursday denied any knowledge of a Mexican slush fund which was described in documents presented to a senate investigation committee by William Randolph Hearst.

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, and Senators Norris, Nebraska, La Follette, Wisconsin, and Heflin, Alabama, were the four senators named in documents furnished a senate committee Thursday by William Randolph Hearst, purporting to show a big Mexican slush fund was made up for them.

Immediately their names were disclosed, Borah, Heflin, and La Follette appeared before the special senate committee investigating the charges, and denied that they ever had received money from such a source or had been approached by anyone who might have been interested in such an offer.

Senator Norris is ill at his home, but his friends on the committee denied the charge on his behalf and moved to secure a statement from him.

Senator Borah, who is chairman of the foreign relations committee, was named in documents submitted by Hearst as having been destined to receive $200,000. Heflin was to have received $350,000 according to the documents, La Follette $150,000, and Norris, presumably, the remainder of the $725,000 fund.

All of these four senators have been actively interested in Mexican affairs, and at one time or another each of them has disagreed with the Mexican policies of the Coolidge administration.

MALONE ALSO ACCUSED

The American pay-off man for the slush fund was said in the documents to have been Dudley Field Malone, the New York lawyer. Malone also took the witness stand and denied connection with any such project.

The documents were submitted to the committee by Mr. Hearst with the comment that although he had many reasons to think they had come from the official files of the Mexican government, and were authentic, he did not believe any of the money had been paid over.

After Borah, Heflin and La Follette had entered the witness stand and asked for prosecution of those responsible for the charges, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, told the committee that in his judgment "there isn't any one who would think that any one of these senators received or would receive one dollar for any action touching their senatorial duties."

Senator Reed, chairman of the committee, added that there was "no evidence" that any senator had received money from the sources named.

HEFLIN'S STATEMENT

In the course of his testimony Senator Heflin did say that he had received some payments for expenses while he was lecturing on Mexican affairs, but that the checks came from "Prominent ministers, K. K. K. men and others interested in the lectures." Borah and La Follette said they had received money from no one.

Malone began his testimony by saying he did not know, and never had seen Arturo M. Elias, the Mexican consul general at New York, with whom he was reputed to be in the document as having worked.

He never heard of the alleged transactions described, he said, nor had he ever acted as intermediary between Mexico and any other government, any members of congress, or any individual.

"I have no idea why my name was mentioned," he said. "I have never been to Mexico nor associated with Mexicans. I have never had $120,000 in my possession from any source whatever."

"I have not seen Senator Heflin since 1913. Have not seen Senator Borah for five or six years. Haven't seen La Follette since he came to the senate. Haven't seen Senator Norris since 1918."

Taking the stand as the first witness in the committee's inquiry into the charges, Mr. Hearst said E. C. Coblentz, one of his New York editors, decided the documents which he claimed came from the Mexican official archives, Mr. Hearst said he submitted them only to the American embassy in Mexico City, but had been called to the attention of President Coolidge before publication.

The president, said Hearst, thought the charges made a case against him, but refused to believe that the money ever reached the senators named. "I have never seen Senator Heflin immediately after the committee's inquiry into the charges. I am not prepared to say the money was not delivered to me," the Alabama senator said in a statement.

COUNTY PROSECUTOR
DEMANDS LOESCHER
QUIT AS CHAIRMAN

Keefe Makes Sensational
Charges Against Menasha
Man in Speech at Neenah

Neenah—Two audiences of more than 500 people each one at the city hall and the other at Kimberly high school auditorium Wednesday night heard Frank T. Keefe, district attorney of Winnebago county, thunder against irregularities which he alleges, have been taking place in the county board of supervisors. Keefe, who was introduced by George A. Loesch, chairman of the board, and threatened to charge him with malfeasance in office.

People were at the city hall as early as 5 o'clock in the afternoon and by 6 o'clock the time for starting the speech, that hall was jammed to the limit and more than 500 people were on the outside. The high school was secured for the second speech which followed immediately after the one at the city hall.

COPIES OF BILLS
Aimed with photographic copies of bills, invoices, letters and checks alleged to have been written by Loesch, as chairman of the board, Mr. Keefe started in his talk by saying that "He regretted he could not talk to the entire crowd at once and that at first he had decided to talk on only a few of the things, but since he decided to come to Neenah to talk many new things had been called to his attention."

"I was elected district attorney scarcely a year ago, without a campaign," he said. "I offered myself for the office feeling that the state was not getting a square deal, so made up my mind to do my best to enforce the laws and protect the citizens of Winnebago county. I promised to be impartial and tried to enforce the laws with what material I had before me and I challenge anyone to find fault with my efforts. By some I have been criticized for going 'too far.' The owner of the slot machines scattered throughout the county thought I was going too far when I ordered them out the second day after taking office. I have closed up other institutions, stamped out the roadhouse evil and am going to start soon in enforcing to the letter the prohibition laws."

CHALLENGES LOESCHER
"With venom and hate toward me, George Loesch, board chairman, dared to say I had failed and I challenge him at this time to point to any instance where I have failed to enforce the law."

"At the close of the last session of the county, after I had left the room, Mr. Loesch delivered his tirade behind my back. I give you my word of honor, Mr. Loesch, that before we finish this job, someone is to be brought to justice. It is going to take a long time as the wheels of justice grind slowly. Carping critics claim I am looking for higher office. You could not give me any other job on a silver plate as during my nine months of office I have become so disgusted with experiences in politics that I am satisfied where I am, to serve the people of the county and continue investigations until those who have been getting money illegally from the county are all picked out."

I have been accused as being affiliated with the Klan, but I am an opponent of intolerance no matter what it is. I was prompted in these actions by no other motive than to burden myself with the office to see that the public got a square deal and to arouse it to the fact that people selected to conduct the county business must be of high calibre, honest and truthful. Mr. Keefe discussed the controversy over control of motorcycle police in which he ruled that the motorcycle officers should be governed by the board and he said his opinion was sustained by the attorney general. He said he had objected to the road and bridge committee of the board purchasing road machinery without the sanction of the board and he again was sustained by the attorney general.

"My purpose was to guide the board on these matters," he said. "I objected to paying two members of the highway committee $1,000 more than the regular $500 allowed them and the board passed a resolution asking me to keep my nose out of the board's business. I was charged by Chairman Loesch with 'sticking my nose into the board's affairs and I challenge him to produce evidence where at any time

MUSKRAT FARM
Menasha—Henry Gembas has purchased 40 acres of slough land from Mrs. Joseph Borsch on the Sherwood rd and plans to start muskrat farm. There already are a large number of muskrat houses on the property.

I addressed the board other than to answer questions or when asked to do so. They called me a meddler and interloper."

A "HAPPY FAMILY"
"The board ratified and confirmed the action of the committee in purchasing $46,000 worth of machinery which was illegal. It had never been advised to the contrary which caused Mr. Loesch to say I was a meddler and was disrupting the 'happy family.'"

Mr. Keefe asked voters to investigate the man they choose to represent them on the county board and to occasionally ask what they are doing with the county's money. He said that the board has been ruled by two or three men and that the others have not had the courage to oppose them. He said 95 per cent of the supervisors are honest men."

"There is nothing in this work for me as I am a lawyer and not a hardware merchant, although I could have gotten rich if I wanted to take money from operators of stills and slot machines which have ceased to operate since I have been in office. They knew I meant business when the order was issued for discontinuing operation."

Mr. Keefe, produced photographed copies of invoices for material and articles which he said Loesch had furnished for construction of the sanatorium. Keefe charged invoices had been changed so that Loesch would receive the money that checks had been issued under orders to the treasurer from Loesch and endorsed by Loesch. No Loesch would get the money. Checks had been made out to read "pay to the Pritzlaff Hardware company or some other firm or 'bearer'" and Loesch always was the bearer. Mr. Keefe said. He showed copies of checks for a Mr. Harris, a plumber employed by Loesch, which were ordered sent to Loesch.

Keefe claimed Mr. Loesch would not deny the charges made against him and he threatened "you are unfit to hold office. Mr. Loesch and you should get out before you are kicked out."

He spoke of the Sheriff Plummer investigation but did not comment upon it as the case is now being considered by the state, other than that he had no malice against the sheriff but with such evidence at hand he had to start action.

"I am asking the people to cooperate with me in my efforts to clean out the dirt which is accumulating in our county," he said.

ACCEPT PLANS FOR ORNAMENTAL BRIDGE

New Structure at Menasha Will Provide Three Comfort Stations for City

Menasha—It was definitely settled by the passage of a resolution at a special meeting of the common council Wednesday evening that the new Tayco-st bridge will be built according to the plans and specifications for four stone towers at each corner of the bridge, three of which are comfort stations.

The drawings are acceptable to the government, state highway commission and Winnebago board of supervisors, but are more elaborate and ornamental than it prepared by the state highway commission.

The special meeting was called by Mayor N. G. Remmel as the result of a letter from the state highway commission requesting tangible evidence that the plans called for the kind of bridge wanted by the city and would not set a precedent for the highway commission to follow. A resolution was accordingly passed, unanimously furnishing the desired record.

It was explained by Mayor Remmel that the comfort stations will be no additional expense to the city as the plans and specifications including them have been drawn and paid for. If plans furnished by the highway commission were used they would include only the operator's tower.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified crocodile that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of chest troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

UNION OF GERMANY AND AUSTRIA

One of the most serious questions in central Europe today is that of an eventual union, or anschluss, between Austria and Germany. The independence of Austria is guaranteed by clauses in the treaties of Versailles and St. Germain, which specifically forbid the union of Austria and Germany, except with the consent of the League council. Within the week, discussion of this subject, which frequently agitates a large section of the European press, has again been revived by Count von Bernstorff's reference, at a meeting of the League Security commission, to article XIX of the treaty of Versailles, which provides for revision of the peace treaty by the League assembly.

Opinion in the two countries varies greatly. In north Germany the Prussians particularly are quite apt to be impatient with their more easy-going Austrian cousins. In their minds should take the form of a strongly centralized government. In the south, the Germans feel themselves often more closely akin to the Austrians than to the north Germans and, accordingly, believe that a solution of the problem lies in a decentralized Germany, removed from the domination of Prussian Berlin.

Within Austria there are many who have a strong distaste for a centralized government under the domination of which Austria would be largely submerged. Opposed to the psychological and international phases of the anchluss movement, however, there is a grave question in the minds of many of the Austrian people as to their ability to exist as an independent state. Some observers go so far as to state that the bad economic situation in Austria, since the war, is the father of the desire for union; others feel that her condition is due to a lack of will to improve it.

Considered as an independent state, the outlook for Austria is anything but hopeful. Of all the war losers, she received the severest punitive treatment. Stripped of her most valuable natural resources and most fertile land, she has been cut down to insignificant proportions and completely isolated, with no free commercial outlet. There is a large influential element openly outspoken for union with Germany. If such a union could be arranged on terms that would give Austria reasonable autonomy and would protect her political interests, it would undoubtedly benefit her economically. It would be an unfortunate thing for Europe and the world if the culture, progress and the development of the Austrian people, which in the past have been of inestimable value, were suppressed or destroyed. Austria is entitled to her right to live and go forward and if it will be best accomplished by union with Germany, that is what should take place. And what is more, the League of Nations should consent to the union.

CHRISTMAS ADVICE

The public appears to have listened to the pleas of the humane and has really begun to do its Christmas shopping and its Christmas giving earlier than formerly. Thus easing somewhat the burdens of postal clerks, mail carriers and salespeople. A great deal more remains to be accomplished during these few last days of the year.

Now a matter of household economies suggests that there are other ways to take the overburden of the holiday season and its economic strain. For example, one of the suggestions is to restrict the household to the use of the radio, the phonograph, the gramophone, etc. These suggestions are not new, but they will undoubtedly add to the festive spirit.

and happiness as well as to the grocers' efficiency in the rushed days ahead.

The other suggestion is that everyone make a special effort to look blooming and happy in the street car, on the streets, in the stores. There is double magic in this. Naturally, a fairly alert and cheerful expression is pleasant for fellow-workers and fellow-shoppers than a tired, dispirited, worried one. Furthermore, try this and prove it for yourself—the consciously cheerful expression actually helps to lessen physical fatigue.

After all, Christmas is supposed to be a season of joy, of happy giving, of doing for others. Some of our modern notions have tended to make it more burdensome than joyful, but the wise person, with Christmas in his heart, will heed this advice and counteract those notions in his own circle, at least.

OUR GOOD WILL AMBASSADOR

Our ambassador extraordinary, and good-will plenipotentiary, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, has now been sent to Mexico. He has made a notable non-stop flight from the capital of one country to that of the other. He carries a message of felicitation from President Coolidge to President Calles. It is in a sense an official mission, at least given such recognition by the government at Washington as to make Col. Lindbergh's presence in Mexico City an event of diplomatic and political importance.

It is a clever, modern, up-to-the-minute project. It cannot fail to appeal to Mexican sportsmanship and sympathy. It follows on the heels of Ambassador Morrow's successful inauguration of a new American policy in Mexico that has already put the relations of the two countries on a better and promising footing. Col. Lindbergh should give this rapprochement a powerful impetus. He will captivate the imagination of the Mexicans just as he did of the French. He will show the Latin-Americans what a human, good-natured, brave American really is. They will like him and applaud him, and that will help them to understand and like a people from which he comes and which they can hardly fail to believe he resembles.

What smooth, oily, ingratiating, secretive, tricky politicians can never obtain—the confidence and respect of a nation—is so immediately conferred on this remarkable personality, who has startled and enthralled the world with his aerial performances and simple graces. He breaks down at a single stroke barriers raised over generations. He opens the way to a complete political and commercial reconciliation between the United States and Mexico. If it is followed up by wise statesmanship it will bring it about, and Ambassador Morrow seems to be the man to complete the job. The government would do worse than to put Col. Lindbergh on the diplomatic staff, and make him a traveling ambassador to the world at large, particularly to those countries which have a grievance against us or imagine they have. He would beat 75 per cent of the politicians we now have in foreign capitals masquerading as diplomats.

THE LEISURE PROBLEM

This modern craze for education seems to be going pretty far. One manifestation is an Adult Education association, of which Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, is president. It has nothing much to do with Americanizing immigrants or helping grown-up natives to make a living. The purpose is explained in this way by Mildred Chadsey, director of the association:

People now have more leisure than they ever had before. That comes from shorter hours in industry and labor saving devices in the home. Men and women are set free to do what they like for some hours every day. Thus the labor problem is being solved. But in its place arises a "leisure problem." What is to be done with the free time? "Theatres, movies, sports and other activities thrive by reason of increased leisure. But it is important that not all leisure be spent in amusements."

Her organization, she says, has made a remarkable discovery—an amazing and hopeful one, she thinks. It is that "most people have an insatiable desire for knowledge." They have a mental curiosity. They want to know things. Given a fair chance, they will choose to use their leisure not for idle dissipation, but for self-improvement. They soon come to realize that "there is pleasure in cultural activities as well as in the more conventional amusements."

SOME FOLKS LIKE SMOOTH DIET AND SOME PREFER ROUGH

Log ago, when I first began the study of dietetics, the subject seemed to me hopelessly complicated. I could find diets for almost every disease, but authorities did not always agree, and I could seldom learn why they approved one food and forbade another.

The foregoing paragraph is quoted from an article on "Nervous Indigestion," by Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, but it is just what I'd say, too, only I began the study of dietetics longer ago than Dr. Alvarez did, and I still find it almost hopelessly complicated. One of the complicating factors is the deplorable habit some of the best physicians have of calling nervous indigestion "nervous indigestion." You see, a "nervous" or neurotic or abnormally imaginative individual who happens to feel some discomfort within a period of six hours after eating is only too willing to acknowledge he suffers from "nervous indigestion" if good physicians imply that there is such a disability.

It was in this article on "Nervous Indigestion" that Dr. Alvarez condemned the use of bran and commended the use of a "soft diet." These observations may apply to certain invalids of the type the practitioner in the field of digestive disorders sees. They certainly do not apply for the general run of healthy folk.

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, in an address at Lake Kewau last summer, said this of bran:

"Bran is a substance whose usefulness for man has been overrated. Thirty-three per cent of it consists of pentosans which are indigestible for man. According to Osborne and Mendel it is irritating to the stomach and intestines; it is therefore contraindicated (that is, not advisable) in hyper-acidity, mucous colitis and other states of gastrointestinal irritability."

Although Osborne and Mendel are recognized authorities in the physiology of nutrition their notion that bran is irritating to the stomach and intestines is of less weight than the experience of any ordinary medical practitioner, in my opinion.

The aversion to bran expressed by Drs. Alvarez and Bastedo is merely in reference to the disease conditions they are dealing with. Both of these digestive disease specialists are competent to pass on a question of treatment or diet in any case of digestive disease. Neither, in my opinion, has any sound basis for assuming, if he does assume, that the popular practice of eating bran is in any way injurious or objectionable, when the individual finds it a help in the prevention of constipation.

Of course bran is largely indigestible for man. That's the main reason why it is a good thing for man to eat. Healthy man. We are not considering medical problems here.

Certainly the "soft diet" recommended by Dr. Alvarez for certain disease conditions which he blankets under the morbid term "nervous indigestion," would not be advisable for well folk to adopt. And in the same address, at Kewau Lake, Dr. Bastedo recommended, to combat constipation, bran breads, whole wheat breads, bran, and fruits including the coarse, indigestible figs and dates.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kindly tell me something about the seven year itch and how one afflicted with it acts. Mrs. W.

Answer—Restless. Even though it lasts only seven weeks, seven days or seven hours, scabies (skin infested by the itch mite) is commonly called "seven year itch" but it is correctly diagnosed and properly treated, it need not last more than seven days or even seven hours. I can give you no specific information or advice about it. You must submit the trouble to your doctor. All sorts of skin troubles are popularly mistaken for the itch. And on the other hand a great deal of scabies masquerade under other names.

She Won't Be a Grass Widow Very Long

HASKIN WRITES TODAY

CHOOSING A VICE PRESIDENT
Washington, D. C. — Amid all the excitement incident to the convening of the new Congress, the meeting of the Republican National Committee to select next year's convention city and President Coolidge's reiteration of his August 2 statement that he does not choose to run for re-election, the public has been permitted to lose sight of the fact that other things have been going on in a political way in the National Capital.

For example, the matter of selecting a tall for the Republican 1928 presidential ticket.

That is not so dignified a manner, of stating that the question of a candidate for Vice President has been receiving no little consideration by the leaders of the Republican party. Perhaps it might be construed as a derogation of the importance of the Vice Presidency or of a nominee for that office; but it is to be stated emphatically that no such construction is invited. The selection of a candidate for Vice President promises to become of the greatest importance both to Republicans and Democrats in 1928.

This is not because it is regarded as probable that either party will nominate a candidate for President who is so aged or so infirm that he is not likely to survive a four-year tenure of the exalted office and, therefore, a candidate for Vice President must be selected who will be the best man and the most acceptable man to succeed a deceased President.

On the contrary, it is expected that both parties will nominate for the Presidency virile and vigorous men of an insurable expectancy of life extending beyond two terms in the White House. But, as the politics of the impending campaign are shaping, it seems imperative that each party should nominate a balanced ticket. To effect that, the candidates for Vice President must be chosen as carefully as those for the first place on the tickets.

STRADDLING IS INDICATED
The reason for this is that straddling seems to be indicated as the best policy for both parties on certain issues, as dispassionate observers in Washington now say they see the situation. Take the wet or dry issue, for example. Developments to date in past events as well indicate that both the major parties hope to be in a position such that they can bid for the support of those who are for prohibition and of those who are against it and those who would like to have a modification of the existing prohibition law. There are so-called drys and wets in both parties. Neither party wants — if it is possible to know what a party wants — to offend either element.

It is a foregone conclusion, according to the political wise-ones, that neither party in its platform will declare unequivocally that it is for prohibition or against prohibition. Instead, both parties will commit themselves to observance of the law and enforcement of the law, and they will do so in ringing and resounding words. No good citizen can quarrel with such a platform declaration because all good citizens believe in law observance and enforcement. But such a declaration does not state in so many words that the party making it is for, or against, the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Law, and that is where the straddling comes in, so far as platforms are concerned.

Beyond doubt, also, there are elements in both parties that will require diplomatic handling next year if they are to be held to their partisan allegiance on the issue. Both parties want the agricultural vote in the debate. Neither party, however, can go too far in bidding for that vote, because there are other interests in the country aside from the farm interests, and are, as well, economic reasons for not doing everything that has been demanded of the Government by the farmers or their avowed spokesmen.

That situation calls for another straddle when plunks are being assembled into platforms. Similarly, there are one or two other issues of less moment on which neither party is expected to take a stand that is altogether explicit and unqualified.

CAN A TICKET STRADDLE?
Now the question arises as to whether a party ticket can be a "straddle" as well as a party platform, which is known to be capable of such an accomplishment. And that leads back to the statement that while other momentous affairs have engrossed the public interest, Republican leaders — some of them, at least — have been doing a bit of quiet work in the way of pre-convention determination as to who shall be their party's candidate for Vice President.

Out of that has come the tangible proposal that Senator Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, be nominated for Vice President on a ticket headed by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover.

That proposal, admittedly, is predicated on the assumption that Mr. Hoover is to be the Republican presidential nominee next year. There are those in Washington who say that is not an assumption — it is a foregone conclusion. There are others who say it is merely a mirage, and that mirages never materialize.

Be that as it may, it is known of men who sometimes whisper a share of what they know that there has been much talk of a possible Hoover-Edge ticket among the party chieftains. It is also known that Senator Edge has been approached, or, as politicians say, "sounded out," on the subject of accepting the nomination for Vice President if Mr. Hoover is named for President.

The idea, as stated, is that if the Democrats nominate Governor Al Smith, of New York, a pronounced wet, for President, and the Republicans choose as their candidate Mr. Hoover, a well-known dry, it would be good politics — a straddle, perhaps — "to have" Senator Edge, an avowed wet, as Mr. Hoover's running mate.

Senator Edge, it is reliably reported, has not as yet reacted favorably to the suggestion. In fact, he is said to have replied to the "sunders" that the only way he could be induced into the office of Vice President would be to carry him in feet first. That would seem to dispose of the incipient Edge boom for Vice President.

However, in view of the fact that he is the first man who has been the victim — or beneficiary — of a 1928 vice-presidential boom, it may be of interest to the public to recall that before Mr. Edge became a United States Senator, twice-elected, he was Governor of his State and had been otherwise honored by the people of New Jersey. He started in life as a winter's devil in the office of an Atlantic City newspaper. Later he owned newspapers, established an advertising agency that has international ramifications, and acquired banking and other interests. He is 53 years of age.

Whom the Democrats will nominate for Vice President in event they choose Smith for their standard bearer has not been discussed to any great extent as yet. Possibly that will be thrashed out when all the leaders of the party foregather in this city next month.

Two hundred years ago, New York City had less than 600 persons. One-half of them were negroes.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Beggars, blind men and cripples do their fattest business in the theater streets just off Broadway during rehearsal season.

Actors, being about the most superstitious folk of the world, invariably give liberally to the first panhandler to come by. They dwell in fear a day that they may be doing the same and like to think, if that day ever comes, they still will be able to live. Also many think that such generous donations build a barrier against luck.

It is an old superstition handed down, perhaps, from those ancient times when lepers camped on temple steps and chanted "Alms, for the love of Allah!" And the wealthier thought to pave their way into the hereafter by healthy contributions.

They say that chorines, who enjoy but moderate incomes, never turn down a beggar.

An old-timer at a theatrical stage door spat out to me, not long ago, his disgust at the present day "lady of the chorus."

In the old days, said he, the "Johnnies" would drive up to the stage entrance in handsome phaetons and take the wise and clever chorus girls to supper. Today, he avers, the average chorine shows little discrimination in men and allows herself to step out with shulkis who take her to a child's coffee shop.

They don't use their charms as they used to, he wails, and have none of the cleverness of their sisters of the mind times.

A telephone company recently lay upon a business-getting Broadway racket.

Posting a huge notice each day of the theatrical attractions opening of the big street they added: "Don't forget to send a congratulatory message. Fans and friends now flock the place, filling messages that can be delivered within a few minutes without the necessity of carrying a wire."

Many a reputation has been made on Broadway by performers whose faces are seldom seen. This season George Spelvin is our particular selection for whatever prize may go to such actors. He plays the hind leg of a comedy maid in "Take the Air" and his best stunt consists of planting his hoofs in the tummy of Will Ma'honey.

In Greenwich Village this winter feverish efforts are being made by "sucker" cafes to convince visitors and slummers that the "old atmosphere" still abounds, whereas most of it has long since passed and, where it exists, visitors are not particularly popular.

Within a week I saw two Broadway electric signs rise in the air, large as life, announcing variously that "this is a rendezvous for artists" and the "poets take their dinners here." This is supposed to "draw them in." As matter of fact the Village boasts few poets worth talking about and artists that can afford to pay Village rental don't have to be put on exhibition in a sight-seeing bus resort.

However, college students, ex-soldiers and such are hired for "part time" work and put on artists' smocks and berets, sitting over corner tables pretending to be arty. An one of them would have difficulty drawing a straight line.

HAIR USED IN NEW WAR DEVICE

Experiments with a new type of explosion which may revolutionize the nature of warfare and the explosive methods used in industry have developed in the Tokyo laboratory of Dr. Hantaro Kikakoshi, a prominent Japanese authority on physics. The method is to pass a direct current of 40,000 volts and 10,000 amperes through a human hair or a metal wire. Under such circumstances the hair explodes instantaneously, producing 10,000 degrees of heat, accompanied by a report as if many gun were fired, it is said. Dr. Nagakura began this experimentation in an effort to solve mysteries relative to the atomic activity of the hot stars. He said the same material from which most modern high explosives are made.

NAGLER BANKS ON FOREST CROP LAW TO AID WOODLAND

Tells Fish and Game Members Agriculture Must Be Helped With Other Crops

Rhineland—(P)—Most optimistic observers point out that timber resources in North America will be exhausted in 1970 unless desperate remedies are applied to the forestry problem. Louis B. Nagler, new conservation director told members of the Oneida County Fish and Game Protective Association here Tuesday night.

He urged greater use of the new forest crop law as one of the remedies which might save future generations from serious handicap.

WANTS CONSERVATION
Forestry, together with all that this word implies, is the phase of conservation in which you of Northern Wisconsin are most interested," he said. "Forests and forest products mean prosperity to you, while you want of it, the failure to give forestry proper attention spells stagnation."

Mr. Nagler recalled to the minds of those attending the meeting that they "have some excellent farm land which should be fully developed." "But," he said, "you are situated in a latitude where the winters are as long as the other three seasons combined and you cannot thrive as you should on agriculture alone. You must develop other industries which will absorb and utilize the surplus man power during the winter. "Your non-agricultural lands must be made to supply this industry and they will if the principles of forestry are properly applied. It is indeed a big and difficult undertaking, but this should not discourage a red blooded American. It can be done and we may rest assured that the people of Wisconsin will see to it that it is done if you who are immediately interested and we who are officially interested will do our parts.

SHOULD BE OPTIMISTIC
"We have good cause to be optimistic. At its last session the legislature enacted what is known as the "Forest Crop Law," the best piece of constructive legislation that has been enacted in Wisconsin in many years. It is generally believed by all interested parties who have familiarized themselves with this law that it is the best act in promoting reforestation in the United States and we may be sure that it will be copied in other states."

The conservation director then declared that applications for the entry of lands under this law are reaching the conservation department "in encouraging numbers" and that "others will come as soon as the land owners are fully informed on the merits of the plan. Some land owners have expressed the fear that the Conservation Commission may make the conditions such that it will be burdensome to all lands that are listed under the law.

"I want to assure all who entertain such doubts that the commission will construe every provision of that law as liberally as the language will permit and will make every doubt in favor of the land owner. We deem this necessary because the question of timber supply is becoming very grave."

Mr. Nagler added that on January 17, the conservation commission will meet at Crandon to take final action on applications for land entries in Forest County. Other meetings in other counties will be held for similar purposes as soon as possible.

Plenty Of Christmas Trees, Survey Of The City Reveals

"Seek and you shall find" seems to be the fairest warning to give Appleton persons who are in search of Christmas trees this year. And if you seek long enough it is more than possible that you will find good trees at reasonable prices.

Few local stores have any trees this year, according to a survey made Tuesday. Most of the dealers were what might be called "wild cat dealers," farmers residing north of the city or to the northwest who are lucky enough to own swamps where trees are growing and have come to town to sell their wares. In some instances trees are being sold by local persons who went north with a truck and bought up a load.

Prices vary greatly though they will probably become general as Christmas approaches. One dealer wanted 50 cents for the smallest kind of a tree, and $2.50 for the better class. Further up College-ave another was asking $1.00 for good trees, $1.50 for very good trees and 25 cents for the smaller, poorly formed trees.

Many trees found on the market this week have branches on one side and are sold with the admonition "set them up in the corner." To counteract this kind of business, another dealer is emphatic in his declaration that "I asked the Lord to give me branches all around." He declared people did not want the poorly formed trees and he had no intention of selling any.

It was said that Christmas trees might be comparatively scarce this year because the heavy snow of last week will not permit easy removal of many from the woods. This particular dealer said that thousands had been taken from the swamps near his home but that they were all being taken to the southern part of the state. He said farmers were receiving 30 cents each for uncut trees.

Reports from other Wisconsin cities are that there are enough trees for everyone, shortage stories and high prices to the contrary. It is also said that the trees are selling at very reasonable prices and are of the best types.

RESUME PUBLICATION OF RETAIL BULLETIN

The Wisconsin Retail Service bulletin for retail merchants, again will be published by the University of Wisconsin extension division, according to Hugh G. Corbett, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, which contains valuable retail information, will be sent free to any merchant who desires it. At present 20 local merchants are on the mailing list from two years ago and others may have their names added to the list by calling or writing the local chamber of commerce.

The bulletin was started a few years ago by the extension division under a request from Mr. Corbett, who said the paper was needed by the merchants. Last year it was discontinued.

MARGOT'S FASHIONS

Men Offered Wide Choice In Gloves; Many Kinds Of Skins Used -- Pigskin, Capeskin

BY CURTIS WOOD
NEW YORK—Leather gloves sewn with leather thread, have been found among the relics of the cave dwellers. Work gloves were used by the ancient Greeks. And the Romans wore gloves as ornaments and as symbols of caste.

PIGSKIN'S SERVICE
The gloves you buy today, therefore, are not likely to go out of style in the future. If you can make them last a couple of hundred years they will doubtless be suitable for your descendants.

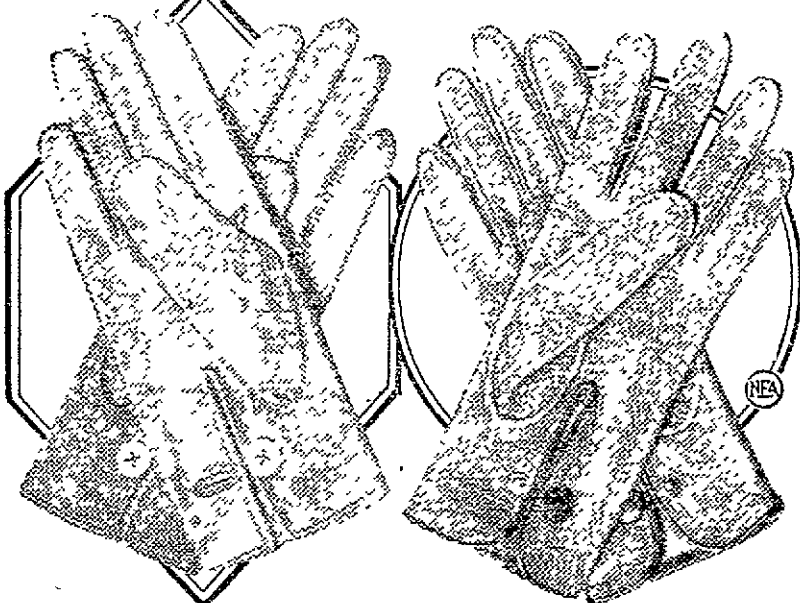

Gloves makes now offer a number of gloves which are suitable for everyday wear. One of the most popular varieties is of pigskin. This is very durable and warm enough for anything short of sub-zero weather.

MORE FORMAL MOCHA
Another warm glove is the capeskin and chamotte type the outer covering of which is made with a lining of chamotte. It is especially good for motorizing for it is not bulky and the double thickness of leather is wind proof.

A slightly more formal type is the grey mocha glove so popular for street wear. This does not easily show the dirt when any glove is sure to collect sooner or later and may be worn not only to business but also to evening parties which do not call for the mocha glove of still higher weight and color. For formal gatherings, where dinner jackets or full dress clothes are required this latter should complete your exterior "get up."

TWO-IN-ONE
Of late years the two-in-one glove has become popular for winter sports and other out of door activities. This consists of an inner glove of wool or fleece and an outer covering of leather. The two coverings and the insulating air space between them are very effective in keeping in the heat of the hand and keeping out the cold.

RARE REAL KID
Most gloves are made from lamb-skin the term "kid" really being a misnomer. There are some kid gloves, however, the finest of which come from Germany, Austria, Sweden, Brazil, Madagascar, France and Bavaria. The ordinary leather glove consists of from 15 to 19 pieces and the art of the glove maker is a fine one. Its age may be guessed at from the fact that the gloves of Perth, Scotland, incorporated in 1655 and the glove makers of France formed their guild in 1190.

SAINT AND SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN

"Why are you dressing up?" Faith asked, amusement rippling her throaty contralto voice, as she walked into Cherry's room and saw her sister trying to choose between the three most ravishing dresses in her entire wardrobe.

It was Wednesday night, Nils Johnson was to arrive in the city on the nine o'clock train from Minnesota, and could be expected at the Hathaway home by half past, according to his terse wire received that morning.

"He's a man, isn't he?" Cherry laughed. "If I'm going to reduce the young bull to absurdity I've got to be dressed for the part, haven't I? Shall it be the jade green chiffon or the amber? The amber matches my eyes and that bronze colored flower on it is exactly the color of my hair, but men like green, I've noticed. I believe I'll wear the jade, with silver slippers and those new moonlight chignon hose of mine. Lend me your Japanese pearls, won't you, darling?"

"You're incorrigible," Faith laughed, but she went to get the beads. As nine-thirty approached, Rhoda's nervousness grew almost unbearable. "It's pathetic how afraid of Nils she is," Faith whispered to Bob when Rhoda had again begun her restless wandering about the room.

"Something more to it than that!" Bob whispered, his eyes narrowed with speculation. "Oh, hello, Cherry! Many happy returns of the day! Is it your birthday or Christmas?"

Cherry spread her foamy green skirts with her rose-tipped fingers and made him a deep curtsy, her face sparkling with delight in her own breath-taking beauty. Her copper-and-gold curls had been crushed until they glistened and shimmered with a living life, and then had been expertly tousled, so that beneath their rioting glory her face looked as fresh and innocent as that of a child who has just awakened from sleep.

Rhoda stopped her nervous swiveling about the room and stared at Cherry, as if she had never seen her before. "Oh!" she breathed, her hand closing about her plump, cream-colored neck. "Did you dress up—for Nils?" she blurted out. "Nils doesn't like girls! He says they make him tired. But all the girls within twenty miles of our farm are crazy about Nils. It makes him so mad!" she confided. Then nervousness shook her again: "Oh, I wish I hadn't run away! Nils is going to be so awful mad at me!"

"So!" Cherry laughed, but her golden eyes snapped dangerously. "Nils doesn't like girls! The impudence of him! What a conceited country bumpkin this precious brother of yours must be! So you think I've wasted my time, Rhoda? That there's no chance of my being able to interest Farmer Nils Johnson? How can you break my heart thus, Rhoda? she mocked, anger sharpening her light, musical voice.

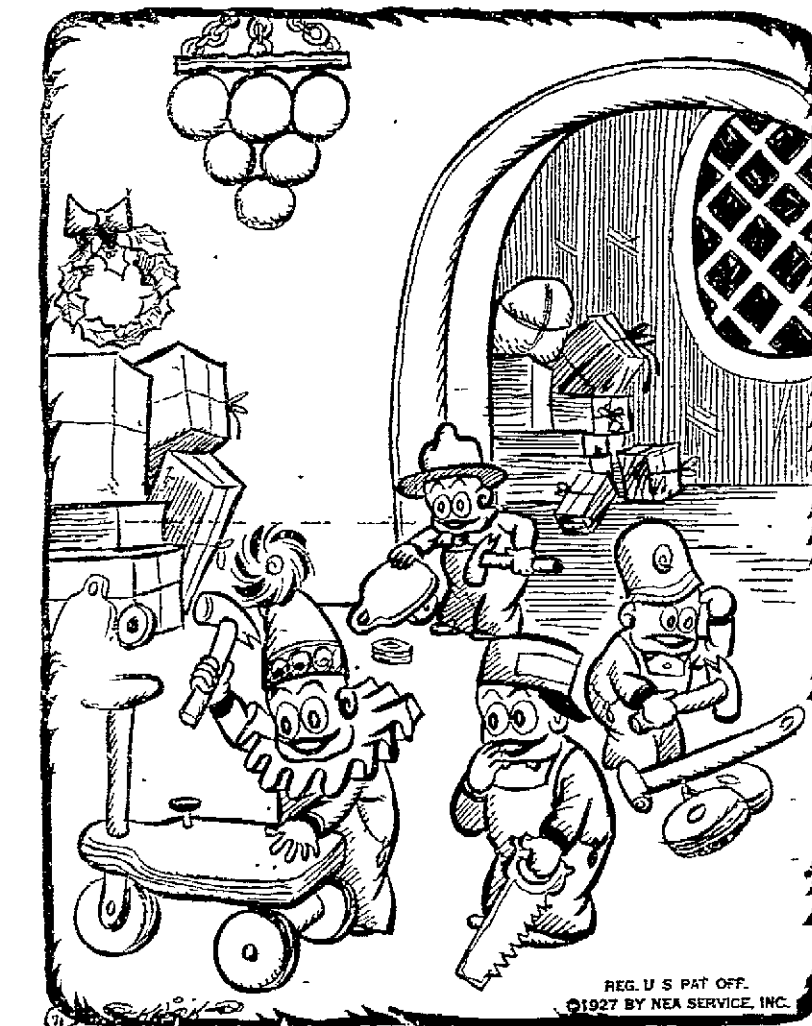

Rhoda, deeply flushed, was about to retort a little more spitefully than becomes a hired maid, no matter how gifted in music she may be, when the doorbell rang, one sharp, imperious ring.

"The answer it!" Cherry sprang to the door, and Faith, who was watching her as she passed, sighed and shrugged and exchanged a long, knowing look with Bob.

NEXT: Nils himself! (Copyright, 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY. THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

IN overalls the bunch looked fine. Wee Clowny shouted, "Look at mine. It seems to fit just right. I guess that it was made for me." And, as they fastened shoulder straps, they were a bunch of lumpy chaps. "And now we'll go to work," said one. "We're willing as can be."

"All right," said Santa. "Come this way, my little ones, and you can see today. I'll take you to a toyshop full of things that children like." They followed him a little while, and then each one began to smile at all the dandy little things they found, when one inside.

Said Santa, "Here are all the parts we use in making coasting carts. I have a lot of orders now for just such things as these. Just start in putting wheels on right, and see that handles fit on right. When once you learn to do it, you can make these things with ease."

The Tinymites then sailed right in, and raised a clatter and a din. It bled in the next story.)

BREAKFAST—Grape fruit juice, cereal, cream, broiled cottage ham, creamed diced potatoes, crisp whole wheat toast, grape jelly, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Baked macaroni and cheese, potato salad, health bread, cooling, milk, tea.

DINNER—Oyster stew with cracker crackers, baked potatoes, buttered spinach, cream croquette, beef and cottage cheese salad, date and nut pudding with whipped cream, milk, coffee.

PIMENTO SALAD

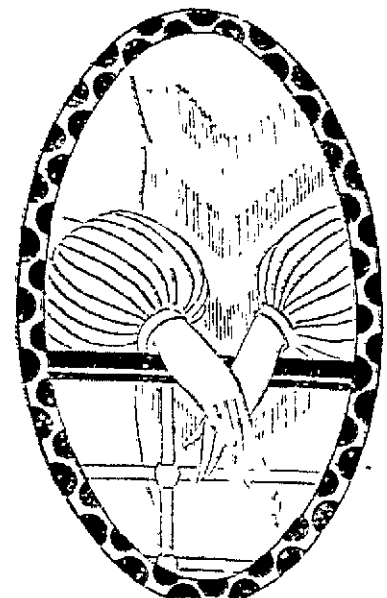

Four canned tomatoes, 1 cup sliced onion, 1 cup sliced celery, 1 cup chopped nut, 1 cup vinegar, lettuce.

Trim and wash potatoes. Let cabbage stand in ice water for one hour after shredding. Drain. Combine cabbage, onion, and nuts with potato milk to make quite moist. Fill potatoes with mixture and serve on a bed of lettuce.

An old dressing made with part lemon juice and part vinegar is always good with a salad of cabbage. Cabbage is so lacking in fat of itself that a rich dressing is desirable.

INJUSTICE IS NEXT TO JUSTICE

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE case of the man in Tennessee who refuses to have his sons vaccinated because it is against his religious belief and who, as result, has been indicted by county authorities, recalls to our minds a similar case in a western city. This boy's parents refused to allow him to take the oath of allegiance to his flag, it being against their religious convictions and beliefs and he was forthwith removed from the custody of the parents by the state.

Fortunately such cases are few, for where justice ends and injustice begins it is hard to decide. Our sympathy was with the parents whose son was taken from them.

"Religious liberty," says the Tennessee father, "is guaranteed by the Constitution." As his religious belief does not permit of vaccination and the state laws say that every child must be vaccinated before he enters school—where you have it. What is to be done?

Other parents object to vaccination, too, sometimes for other reasons, but there is nothing in the Constitution to give them legal backing. They submit more or less willingly, partly because they realize that what is fair to one must be fair to all, and vice versa.

They know that smallpox would be epidemic in three years if states did not insist on enforcing the law for vaccination. The public is alarmed in time of safety. We do not fear smallpox because we know nothing about the horrors of the disease. Vaccination has practically stamped it out. If we let up on vaccination, back it will come as sure as the sun sets.

WRISTON DECLARES PEACE IS BASIS OF THE MODERN WORLD

President of Lawrence College Is Speaker at Commencement Exercises

Minneapolis, (AP)—A world built upon an international basis economically and commercially cannot base its political life upon nationalism. This is the opinion of Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis., as set forth in an address Thursday at the commencement exercises marking the close of the fall quarter at the University of Minnesota.

"The modern world as we have inherited it," he said, "is founded upon the assumption of peace, and unless that assumption can be supported by the civilization founded upon it must be profoundly altered."

Through most of history of the world, he pointed out, "the assumption of war" was the basis of life. The political structure of the world was based upon the major premise that war was inevitable he said, "and often war was regarded as the principal duty of the state."

"In the modern world, the fabric of society has been woven anew. The individual is the single strand. In the last quarter century, with the emancipation of woman, that statement is accurate. There is a new fineness in the social order, hierarchies and special privileges have slowly disappeared, and the result is a new evenness of democratic texture."

"But as the tribal and feudal knots have gone, as its threads have been spun finer and finer, tighter and tighter, the fabric of society has become more fragile."

"As with society, so with politics. As the spirit and genius of Spain was martial, so the spirit and genius of America is civil. As the medieval world based its politics upon war, the modern world bases its assumptions upon peace."

"Finance has gone through a transition. Public and private organizations in Europe owe over fifteen billions to public and private agencies in the United States. The listing of foreign securities on the New York stock exchange involves cutting new channels for the exchange of credit and capital. It opens the way for the greater acceleration in the volume of international obligations. Our task is to reshape our international politics to harmonize with the interdependence, the world community of interest, the economic unity of mankind which has developed in the last two centuries."

NEW SONGS WILL FEATURE LATEST HAREFOOT PLAY

Richard Abert takes the part of a popular movie actress and scenario writer in the Harefoot musical comedy, "Feature That" which will appear for matinee and evening performance at Fischer's Appleton theatre on Dec. 21.

Catchy collegiate tunes composed and played by members of the cast will be one of the entertaining features of "Feature That" the 1927 presentation of the Harefoot club of the University of Wisconsin, which will appear at Fischer's Appleton theatre on the afternoon and evening on Dec. 21. All the female roles in the comedy are taken by men of the club.

Some of the principal comedy songs which will be sung are "It's Quite Alright, Isn't It?", "It's a Sure Sign She Loves You," and "Blue Eyes." Another interesting feature will be a Ruth St. Dennis oriental dance by Kerbert Earle, who has played female leads in the past two Harefoot productions. The mail order ticket sale has already commenced. Tickets may be obtained at the box office at the theatre on Dec. 21.

LOCAL GIRLS ARE MADE MEMBERS OF LANGUAGE SOCIETY

Lawrence Students Elected to Phi Sigma Iota Had High Class Ratings

Three Appleton girls have been elected to Phi Sigma Iota, honorary romance language society, at Lawrence college—Miss Marie Voelck, Miss Norma Burns and Miss Elizabeth Earle. Others elected to the organization are Miss Mary Morton and Elbert Smith, 26.

Excellent work in advanced courses in romance languages and at least a general average of B is required before the student may be elected to Phi Sigma Iota.

The society, which was established at Allegheny college in 1927, has only two chapters in Wisconsin, one at Beloit, the other at Lawrence. The chapter at Lawrence was established last spring. Dr. L. C. Baker, Misses Charlotte M. Lorenz, Elizabeth Denyes, Elizabeth McConkey, Jessie Mae Pate, Eunice Davis, Helen Diederich, Leona Fainback and Herbert Webster, all of the class of '27, and Amy Hower and Lola Payne, both of '28, were charter members.

The officers of the local chapter are Dr. L. C. Baker, president; Miss Lola Payne, vice president; Miss Jessie Pate, treasurer and Miss Charlotte Lorenz, secretary.

BILL IN CONGRESS OPPOSES STATE LAW

Question Deals With Authority to Inspect Grains While in Transit

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington—Vice President Dawes laid before the Senate the joint resolution passed by the Wisconsin legislature protesting against the passage of the Frazier-Burnett bill which, the resolution declared, would deprive the Grain and Warehouse commission of Wisconsin of authority to act as Federal inspectors of grains in transit. The bill, which has the approval of Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, would save the federal government approximately a half million dollars a year and this was urged as the reason for its passage when it was brought out at the last session of Congress. The bill never was acted upon at the last Congress but is to be pushed at this session. If enacted the Frazier-Burnett bill would make null and void the act of the commission located at Superior, which has been in existence for twenty years. The legislature in its memorial said that the commission at Superior had done its work in a manner uniformly satisfactory to the shippers and grain interests of the Northwest and his work has been approved by the Federal government.

FORMER APPLETON GIRL PRODUCES PLAY IN EAST

"The Sea Gull," a play written by Mrs. Frank Tabor, daughter of Professor and Mrs. Rufus M. Bagg, was produced for the first time at the Little Theatre at Lynchburg, Va. Wednesday evening. The play as yet has not been published. The setting is a Liphraim, Wisconsin and depicts life and personalities on the Door Peninsula.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tabor have published several songs, Mr. Tabor composing the music and Mrs. Tabor writing the words. The former is director of music at Randolph-Macon Woman's college at Lynchburg. Mrs. Rufus M. Bagg is at present with her daughter. Professor Bagg will leave for the east next week.

"In these twenty years the tests, grades and determinations of the Wisconsin Grain and Warehouse commission have seldom been called into question," the resolution said. "There has been no call from the people of this state or the grain growers of adjoining states for the present system of grain inspection."

Another resolution of the Wisconsin legislature laid before the Senate by Vice President Dawes asked greater aid for the Forest Laboratory Station at Madison in order that it might undertake an adequate national program of forest research in connection with the states.

ANTIGO WORKMAN FINDS GOLD RING EMBEDDED IN LOG

Antigo—(AP)—A gold ring embedded in a maple log was discovered by Ronald Simons, workman at a Vencer Seating company's plant. The ring was revealed when the knives of the veneer cutter struck it. How the ring came to be in the position found is a mystery. It was about four inches in from the bark in the butt end of a log about eighteen inches in diameter. One supposition is that the ring was left hanging on a twig and the tree grew over it. The depth to which it is imbedded in the tree indicates that it had been there for from fifty to sixty years. The ring is a plain gold band of large size, evidently a man's, and on the inside is an 18 karat mark.

MARIAN NIXON IN "OUT ALL NIGHT" WITH REG. DENNY

Marian Nixon, vivacious leading lady of the screen, plays the leading feminine role in the Universal farce comedy, "Out All Night," starring Reginald Denny at Fischer's Appleton theatre today and Friday.

Although Miss Nixon is still but a child in years she is one of the best known actresses on the screen and has appeared in a number of notable productions in the short time she has been before the camera, perhaps the greatest being "The Great Barrier" in which she was co-starred with Edmund Burns under the direction of Paul Leni, the noted German director.

Strangely enough it was with Denny that Miss Nixon received her first important part in a picture, but let her tell it:
"I had always been thrilled at the thought of meeting Mr. Denny," explained the diminutive Marian, "but imagine the thrill I got when the day after meeting him, I received a call to play opposite him in a picture."
The picture was "What Happened to Jones?" and it was an outstanding hit. She played with him in several after that including "Rolling Home" and then the team was split up in order to feature Miss Nixon in two pictures.

"Out All Night" was directed by William A. Seiter, from the story by Gladys Lehman. The supporting cast includes Ben Hendrick, Dorothy Earle, Wheeler Oakman, Dan Mason, Bob Seiter and a host of others.

STRANSKY APPOINTED DIVISION ENGINEER

Milwaukee—(AP)—Formal announcement of the appointment of Joseph A. Stransky, Milwaukee, to the post of division engineer of division number one, of the state highway department with headquarters at Milwaukee, made by the state highway commission from its Madison office, revealed some of the new engineer's history. Mr. Stransky will fill the position left vacant by the death of Harry W. Wronan.

Mr. Stransky completed a course in engineering at Marquette university in 1912, receiving the degree of bachelor of science in mechanical engineering. His first position after graduation was with a Milwaukee manufacturing company, for which concern he supervised erection of machinery. In 1914 he accepted a position with the Du-Buitt, South Shore & Atlantic Railroad, doing valuation work as an instrumentman and camp draftsman. In 1915-16 Stransky was with the Union Pacific Railroad as instrument man on location and construction in Wyoming and Utah. During 1917-18 he served with the Cerro de Pasco Copper corporation at Cerro de Pasco, Peru, S. A., as first assistant to the chief engineer. In this position he had direct charge of all engineering under and above ground, designing layouts, prospecting and estimates. Mr. Stransky entered the employment of the state highway department in 1919.

Dr. Babcock Dentist has moved his office from room 319 Ins. Bldg., 3rd floor to room 219 Ins. Bldg., 2nd floor, in the same corner of the building on floor below.

MERCHANTS WARNED TO WATCH OUT FOR CHRISTMAS CROOKS

Chamber of Commerce Warning Says Defrauding Apt to Occur During Rush

Appleton merchants were urged this week by officers of the local chamber of commerce to exercise special caution during the Christmas holiday season. The first attempts at fraud which always are numerous during the holiday shopping period is the time for petty thieves.

Among the defrauding practices are "short change artists," "check writers" and "shoplifters."

It was urged that any small thieves, or persons attempting to defraud, be detected if possible, and the police department can be called upon to help. It is also suggested that the holiday shopping period is the time for petty thieves.

CIVIL SERVICE HAS 6 POSITIONS OPEN

Engineers, Farmers and Warehouse Examiner on List Just Announced

A farmer for work in the Indian service is wanted by the United States civil service commission, according to a recent bulletin received here by H. J. Frank, secretary of the local examining board. The position carries with it a salary of $1,200 a year and quarters, heat and light. Persons holding licenses, architects and others wishing to take the civil service examination may learn the exact date by conferring with Mr. Frank at Appleton post office.

Other positions to be filled by civil service examination are as follows: Principal architectural and structural steel draftsman, light-house service, department of commerce, throughout the United States at $2,100 a year.

Senior chemical engineer (pulp and paper), Forest Products laboratory, Madison at $5,200 to $6,000 a year, the entrance salary depending upon the qualifications of the applicant as shown in the examination and the duty to which assigned.

Junior pharmacologist and junior pharmacologist, department of agriculture and public health service, for duty in Washington, D. C., or in the field, at $1,800 a year.

Junior warehouse examiner, bureau of agricultural economics, department of agriculture, for duty in Washington, D. C., or in the field, at $1,500 to $2,400 a year the entrance salary varying with the conditions obtaining at the headquarters where the vacancy occurs.

COLLEGE CHICKS JUST AS PLEBIAN AS ORDINARY HENS

Urbana, Ill.—One would think, wouldn't one, that the college bred chickens, raised in an atmosphere of supreme knowledge, would have a taste for finer things than does his seemingly lesser cousin, the ordinary farm yard fowl.

However, according to H. H. Alp, poultry extension specialist of the University of Illinois, college chickens are fed a ration that is applicable to average farm flocks. In cases of experiments, the college chicken is the goat, for upon him is every test made and upon the outcome of his case rests whether his country cousin will feed on a sack of corn and wheat.

The duties will be to assist in the inspection of warehouses to determine their suitability for the storage of such commodities as broom corn, canned goods, cold storage products, cotton, cottonseed, dried fruit, beans, grain, peanuts, potatoes, sirup, tobacco and wool; and to perform other related work.

Assistant tax inspector, bureau of animal industry, department of agriculture, for duty in the field, at $1,500 a year. The duties are to assist at slaughterhouses and packing establishments in connection with the inspection of meat and meat-food products and to perform such other duties in packing houses or in connection with animal-disease work in the field as may be required.

YOUNGER STUDENTS NEED KINDERGARTEN

No Other Place for Youngsters Under Six, Educational Paper Says

Madison—(P)—In the judgment of the state department of public instruction, children much below six years of age "have no real place in schools without kindergarten."

The opinion expressed in the "State Department of Public Instruction" columns of the forthcoming Wisconsin Journal of Education, is based on the belief of the state department that there are inadequate or improper school facilities and equipment for such children except where regular kindergarten instruction and equipment is available.

Under the constitution any child past its fourth birthday and under twenty years of age cannot be excluded from educational privileges, but the state education department would have the teachers of the state confer with parents who wish to send their children to school before they are five or six in cases where no kindergarten is provided.

"These children need freedom and a chance to move about and learn through their own activities more than is possible in any school except the one designed to furnish such training; namely the kindergarten." Moreover, primers and first readers are intended for children six years old or more and courses of study everywhere are planned for children who start the first grade when they are six years of age.

The under-age child is handicapped throughout his whole school course even if he does barely pass the first year's work. The second year's course is still harder than is planned for seven years intelligence. It seems evident that children who are started in regular grade work at the age of four or five lose time and fall behind their grades, often finishing school, if they do not become discouraged and drop out a year or two later than pupils who began when they were matured enough to grasp the work of the lower grades and do it well at the normal rate of one grade a year.

There are no desks made for children four or five years old. In the kindergarten department children of these ages are seated about kindergarten tables and on so-called kindergarten chairs. The whole equipment of the kindergarten department is portable. Much of the instruction given consists of games and plays suitable to the age of the pupils. In regular grade rooms these children are uncomfortable and unhygienically seated in the grade desks.

If parents insist on sending to school such under-age children, it is generally not possible, nor is it advisable for the teacher to grade them as first grade pupils.

"A word of caution must be given to teachers when parents, in spite of persuasion on the contrary, insist on sending these little children to school. Teachers must remember that these under-age children are in school, not because of their own desire to be there, but because they are sent. There is no justification for the teacher who makes the life of the little children unbearable in school. They can be given some forms of employment without taking too much of the teachers' time and they can be dismissed to the playground or playroom for play before the other children are dismissed at recesses and intermissions."

CITY TAX ROLL FOR NEXT YEAR IS READY

Figures Show $1,135,492.60 to Be Collected from Local Property Owners

The 1928 tax roll for the city of Appleton has been completed by City Clerk E. L. Williams and was turned over to City Treasurer Fred Bachman Tuesday afternoon for collection.

Figures show that $1,135,492.60 is to be collected from property valued at $30,839,175 for distribution to the various departments.

Of this amount, the state will receive as its share $217,666.14. For the county tax, $8,821 will go as the city's share and $238,992.36 for other county tax, making a total of $217,314.56. There will be $1.68 returned as illegally collected tax; $36,112.50 spent for the redemption of school bonds and interest and $317,002.36 turned over to the city for operation, making a total of $383,116.54.

The county school tax, for the city, will be $27,518.75 and the sum of $392,508.75 used for other purposes. This amount, combined with the amount mentioned, totals $1,075,724.74 which, with the special tax of $56,767.85, makes the grand total of $1,135,492.60.

COOLIDGE MESSAGE BEFORE CONGRESS SHOWS BIG CHANGE

Topics Discussed at Length
Two Years Ago Received
but Slight Mention

Washington—The president's message to the new Congress, makes especially interesting reading when read in conjunction with his message to the last Congress two years ago.

He made it known that he left out some subjects for lack of space, but he discussed 25 subjects in only 24 pages as compared with 26 subjects in 25 pages, in December, 1925. Subdivisions of the 1925 message which did not appear this year were World Court, Budget, Foreign Debt, Immigration, Reclamation, Retirement of Judges, Mothers' Aid, Civil Service, Federal Trade Commission and Government Reorganization. New sections included those on Commercial Aviation, Pan-American Air Mail, Good Roads in Latin America, Cuban Parcel Post, Protective Tariff, Farm Loan System, Flood Control, American Indian, Petroleum Conservation, Education, Department of Labor, Public Buildings and Historical Celebrations.

"DIFFERENT SUBJECTS"

The message is alike in many respects, but on three important subjects President Coolidge has changed his attitude. These are farm relief, naval armaments and Muscle Shoals. More clemency, of course, are held to be necessary as the result of the failure of the Geneva conference and new developments have affected the complexion of the Muscle Shoals problem, but the president's remarks on agriculture obviously were a concession to politics for, while noting a great improvement in the farmers' lot, the president was willing to go considerably further before.

Agriculture relegated as far back as page 17 two years ago, has now appeared on page 8. Linked with the protective tariff and the farm loan system, it received nearly four pages as compared with a page and a half in 1925.

Then, as Mr. Coolidge said agriculture as a whole had improved in the previous three or four years, but that many localities and groups were still in a "distressing condition" which was "probably temporary." The farmers, he was convinced, did not want any "government meddling" nor any system of direct or indirect price-fixing. A "new era in agricultural prosperity" which will probably be unprecedented" lay "just before us" and the president would recommend nothing more than a bill to enable the Department of Agriculture to give prompt information on crop prospects, supply demand, imports, exports and so on.

BIG IMPROVEMENT

The president told the new Congress that the past year has seen a marked improvement in agriculture, general condition, although the farmers had not fully recovered from the post-war depression. The farmer must be assisted only in working out "his own salvation."

Mr. Coolidge reiterated some of his prime arguments expressed in his 1925 message. He again vetoed a statement of surplus acreage and finally proposed a federal board of men experienced in marketing to assist co-operatives in orderly marketing and handling surpluses not due to vital overproduction, with provision for a low interest revolving loan fund. In short, the government would help the co-operatives establish the farmer on a sound business basis. Meanwhile,

Lindbergh Takes Off For Mexican Flight

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, transatlantic aviator extraordinary and unofficial ambassador from the United States to the rest of the world, is shown here just before he took off from Washington on a flight to Mexico, arranged for by Dwight Morrow, U. S. envoy to that nation, as a step in promoting cordial relations toward this country below the Rio Grande. The picture, taken just before Lindbergh climbed into his famous Spirit of St. Louis and took off, shows him shaking hands with Major Harvey Barnell, commandant of Bolling Field, Washington, where the flight began. Another air service officer leans on the struts of the plane, watching the farewell.

The president held, material tariff reduction would be disastrous to the farmer.

Two years ago the president said: "Muscle Shoals should be developed primarily for nitrates. Since then Mr. Coolidge has come around to the contention of Senator Norris that nitrates cannot be successfully produced at Muscle Shoals owing to new and cheaper methods and that the project is now "most" concerned with power."

He agrees with Norris—and thus disagrees with the American Farm Bureau Federation—that Muscle Shoals can best and agriculture at its power revenues are applied to fertilizer development instead of its obsolete equipment.

NEED PREPARATIONS

Two years ago, Mr. Coolidge was well satisfied with the condition of national defense and warned against competitive armaments. This year, the subject was moved up from page 13 to page 3 and the president stressed the need of adequate military and naval preparation. To meet our naval responsibilities, we needed "a very substantial sea armament" with aircraft development, more submarines, more airplane carriers and "a material addition" of cruisers. "We should not engage in competition, but everything necessary to guard our interests must be done."

Taking up prohibition, two years ago the president urged state co-operation in enforcement, public observance of the law, continued federal enforcement effort and passage of appropriations. Mah Jongg, which had a vogue in this country a few years ago, is being revived by society people of London. A number of mah jongg parties are being held. 'MODERN' WOMAN CALM AS SHE WAITS TRIAL FOR MURDER

Flapper Slayer of Young Husband Puffs Cigarets in Ohio Jail Cell

BY ALLEN SUMNER
Perry, O.—A bluff, blond-headed brute of 21, weighing less than 100 pounds.

Smashed her young husband's skull with a claw hammer and table leg in this little town the other night—bound his dead body with cords—Nonchalantly pulled a new green hat over her shock bobbed head.

Drove 55 miles to a friend's home and a bridge party, where she won all the prizes and sang jazz songs—slept all night like a child—Ate a hearty breakfast—Spent a day Christmas shopping, buying some gifts for the murdered husband in the love nest—And only asked for more cigarettes, which she calmly puffed when the sheriff came to get her.

"THE MODERN MURDERESS"
And there, in the person of Mrs. Velma Van West, you have a perfect picture of what officials are calling "the modern woman murderer."

The poise and coolness of modern woman have been much discussed of late. But Velma West, known as "A Night Club Girl in a Curfew Town," is the first woman known to execute a murder with something of the same attitude with which other modern young women handle home and job, or do other feats unknown to the more hysterical women of older days.

The murder of young "Ed" West, 26, has startled the country.

The murdered man belonged to a nationally known family.

Perry thrilled when it heard that popular Ed West had brought a city girl home for his bride.

A reception was given by the young groom's parents. All Perry was invited to the Mr. West home. All Perry came. Just what happened is not clear. But the family of the murdered man admit that "Ed's wife" was never "taken up" by Perry.

Velma West was "different." She smoked cigars and plenty of them in public. Maybe other Perry girls smoked too, but behind locked doors with only a bosom friend or so for a holder.

Velma West was indifferent to all the things that Perry held dear—old families, old books, old music, old friends.

Velma laughed at the old and talked much about the "kicks" and "thrills" of life.

She was invited out a little at first by "Ed's friends." But Velma was bored by the parties. Besides, the invitations seemed to die a natural death.

So the young Wests began finding their good times in Cleveland, about 25 miles away.

COULDN'T AGREE

Three and four times a week the shiny green roadster took the road to the big city. The dead man's relatives say that Ed didn't always want to go. He worked in his father's nursery all day. He was tired nights.

"Let's stay home tonight, Velma," he is quoted as often saying. "Let's just stay here while I sit in the big chair with the paper. It'll be cozy."

But Velma wouldn't stay. The city was in her blood—part of her. Folks went to bed at 10 o'clock in Perry.

It was a party that made Ed West die. Velma told him they were going to a bridge party at a girl friend's home on the farthest part of Cleveland that night. They were driving home from another nearby city when she told him.

"But I'm tired," West told her. "Let's stay home tonight."

After supper, Velma began dressing for the party, urging Ed to hurry up.

"But I'm not coming," he said, and she knew that he meant it. They quarreled. Ed got mad. Said things about her friend.

"You hardly know her—she's not your kind—won't have you running around with that crowd—why don't you play bridge with some of these nice Perry girls? Might join The Young People's Set." Etc., etc.

Almost 21 hours later Velma West told the sheriff and county prosecutor what happened. They had not even questioned or accused her. Hardly suspected.

"Why did you leave the back door open when you went away?" was the odd question that brought a complete written confession from the flapper bride.

"All right, I'll tell everything," she did.

Ed finally struck her as they quarreled, she said. She "saw red." Went down to the cellar, got a hammer, came back, hit him over the head with the hammer and when he went down finished the job with a library table leg which was "just lying around" until the table could be repaired.

AFTER THE MURDER

She bound him, threw a blanket over him, left the lights burning, went to Cleveland and was "the life of the party" all night, talked and giggled with her girl friend until late in the night, slept well, ate a good breakfast, then went Christmas shopping with her mother. She bought a box of nice handkerchiefs for Ed and almost bought a scarf she thought he would like.

Officials were waiting for her at her mother's home and took her to Painesville, the county seat. There she calmly told her story.

A plea of insanity and perhaps self-defense will be her move in court when the first degree murder trial opens in January.

Meanwhile, this "modern woman murderer" smokes pack after pack of cigarettes in her cell. She has not wept yet. Nor laughed. She has only asked for more fags and sometimes hummed snatches of modern jazz songs.

LAWRENCE CAGERS FACE TOUGH OPPOSITION IN OPENER

Northwestern Quintet, Conqueror Of Ripon Men, Open Season For Blues

Coach Denny Starts Sophomore Lineup Against Classy Lutheran Cagers

PROBABLE LINEUPS
LAWRENCE NORTHWESTERN
Remmel F. Rosenbauer
Jackola F. Zitz
Slavic C. Pless
Pierce G. Grattinger
Voelck G. Kettner
Referee—Witte, Appleton.

"Plenty tough" will be the opposition for Coach A. C. Denny's 1928 Lawrence college basketball team in the opening game of the season for the Denymen, Friday evening at Army G. for the Blues will play host to Northwestern college of Waterloo, conqueror of Ripon college's title hopes by a large margin Tuesday evening at Ripon. There were those that thought Lawrence was carding an easy opener for the 1928 season, a "practice game" for the sophomores, when Northwestern was scheduled in its first year of Wisconsin-Illinois conference basketball, but even the most confident have changed their mind since Tuesday.

The Lutherans walloped Ripon on the Ripon floor, 38-27, with the Redmen, who were slated to have a great chance of repeating last year's W-I conference championship, never having a chance. Last year the Reds were champions with a great record and four regulars of that squad and two subs were in the lineup that faced Northwestern. Though the Lutherans have entered the conference caging for the first time they have been playing the game for several years, and last year's team, from which the nucleus of the 1928 squad has been formed, was said to have been a great squad, capable of giving any Little Five quintet a "rubb", though not playing a regular college team all season. The school is blessed with one of the finest gymnasiums and basketball courts in the state to practice on.

SHOW SHOOTING ABILITY
The ability of the Lutherans as sharpshooters is shown in the records of the Ripon game. Rosenbauer and Zitz forwards, scored four and six baskets each and Pless, the center, added another six, indicating besides good shooting a high quality of teamwork and passing. Rosenow also added three free tosses. The work of Zitz and Pless ranks with best seen in the Little Five since the season of Lawrence's crack squad of Zuehlman, Ashman, Heideman, Briesse and Kotal, the reports said. Both are exceptionally fast men, hard to guard, with eagle eyes for the hoop. Pless stars at under the basket shots and followups. The guards, Grattinger, Kettner and Mackdenz, are classy defensive players as Ripon's high scoring forwards of last year's Midwest conference can affirm and they carry the ball to their forwards well.

Coach Denny will start a team composed entirely of sophomores, but it is probable that before the game is over many Lawrence prospects will have seen action in an effort to build a winning combination for the season. The starting lineup will include three Fox river valley boys and will be composed of steady, consistent players, all fighters, striving for teamwork, rather than any particularly brilliant players. At the forwards will be Lefty Remmel, former Menasha high star, and J. Jackola, star of the 1927 frosh quint. Jerry Slavic of Elgin, Ill., will work at center. The guards will be taken care of by a pair that two years ago were all-tournament choices for the guard positions at the district tourney held here. They are Carl Voelck, Appleton's steady fighter, and Pierce of Menasha, another hard scrapper.

FROTH TEAMS CLASH
Another feature of Friday's cage program is one of the best preliminaries ever to be staged before a Lawrence game. Two freshman teams will be given a chance to show their stuff and to give the spectators a line on Lawrence's froth cagers and the hopes for a successful varsity team next winter. The Greens, coached by Eddie Kotal will battle the Tans, coached by "Pete" Briesse. The mentors are the famous guard pair of the Lawrence Midwest conference, Little Five and state champions of a few years ago, and both were all-Midwest guard choices.

FIRST GAME AT 7
Three Appleton players, two of whom were regulars on the Orange quintet last year when it took second in the Valley conference, and one from Manitowish's speedy third-place team will be familiar to the fans in the preliminary game. They are Pete DeLonge, F. Campbell, and Laid and Catlin of Appleton. Laid and Catlin of Manitowish, Laid was center on the Orange regulars and Catlin appeared him on the reserves.

Take Definite Action On Badger Winter Carnival
Madison—Definite action on the Wisconsin winter sports carnival, including the setting of the event for Jan. 5, 6 and 7, and the appointment of John St. John as president of the joint committee, was taken at a special session, held last night at the Hotel Wisconsin. The meeting was called by St. John to formulate a general program for the carnival being jointly planned by the city of Madison and the University of Wisconsin. The purpose of the carnival was set forth by St. John as that of "bringing Madison to the lake place of the winter sports, and to attract the open market and committees and departments were partially organized. John St. John, Madison business man, officially took charge of the winter sports committee. HARRIS MAY KEEP SISLER, SPEAKER

Washington Boss Would Like Both for Flag Race

New York—(AP)—The supposition of baseball men seems to be that the Washington Senators, now that they have obtained the once peerless first sacker, George Sisler, will come to a parting of the ways with Tris Speaker, in order to avoid having too many high-salaried veterans on the payroll. It has been somewhat generally predicted that Speaker would be handed his release anyway, on the theory that his usefulness and drawing powers had waned.

Bucky Harris, however, not only fails to share this point of view but expects Speaker to roam center field with his customary skill for the Senators next year. Since the youthful pilot of the Senators has a first-hand interest in the matter his attitude happens to be more important than that of the second-guessers. The salary issue may be a stumbling block. Harris admits this. The Senators most likely will ask the "Grey Eagle" to take some reduction in his pay check, in view of the circumstances involved, but even so it would still be financially worth while for Speaker to remain in the Capital, particularly since there appears no other opening for him just now. "Our chances of making a strong bid for the pennant next year will be much better with Speaker and Sisler both adding their punch to the lineup," Harris declared Thursday. "Both have a lot of good baseball left."

It is a coincidence that the unofficial American League averages show Sisler and Speaker finishing the 1927 season with identical batting marks, .327, considerably below their best years but still good enough to put them inside the first 12 regulars.

CRITICS SURPRISED AT RANKING OF NET STARS

New York—Ranking of Senorita de Alvarez, the Spanish star, above Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Mrs. Molla Malory, the American veterans, on the international list by British critics caused some surprise in official tennis circles here. The champion Spanish girl is admitted to be a great player by those Americans who have seen her on European courts but it was thought that she hadn't computed in enough big tournaments this year to be ranked second to Miss Wills.

Mrs. Katherine McKane Godfree and Miss Betty Nibbel, the British stars in fifth and sixth places, were not disappointed but it was thought that Miss Bouman, the Dutch champion, deserved a higher place than ninth.

There also was a disposition to question the tenth position of Mrs. Charlotte Hower Chapman, one of the coming American players, as she is considered to be better than Miss Hume, Miss Atkin, and Joan Fry, England, who have won seven, seven and eighth places.

Miss Helen Wills, of course, earned clear first place and the critics have all agreed that she is in a class by herself and that all of the lower ranked players constitute a second tier.

YOUNG JOCKEY SETTING PACE IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, La.—Only an apprentice rider, Tom, at least, but he is making the season stride step lively at the winter racing meeting here. During the first three days of the current season Tom, who is ten years old, has won three races and his nearest competitor.

TWO MORE WORLD'S TITLE BOUTS HELD WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Morgan Defends Crown from Glick; Schwartz, Brown in Title Go

Two more world's championships, making three that have been fought in four days, will be staged in Tex Rickard's garden December 21.

On a bargain bill, Tod Morgan will defend his junior lightweight championship against Joe Glick of New York and Corporal Izzy Schwartz of New York will fight Newsboy Brown for the vacant flyweight championship in a pair of east-west intersectional contests.

Rickard's idea in cramming a four-day program with three championship fights is a novel one and is the first carnival of its kind to be staged since the Sullivan-Corbett fight in New Orleans.

Tod Morgan's claim to the junior lightweight championship — one of those trick classes invented by the New York Boxing Commission — is undisputed, as both the New York commission and the National Boxing Association agree that the nice-looking California boy is the real champion. If Glick wins, there will be no dispute about his right to the title, but the betting favors Morgan to get the nod from the officials.

The winner of the bout between Schwartz and Brown may be disputed, however, as the world's flyweight champion. Since the retirement of Fidel LaBarba, who hung up his

DEMPSEY PLANS NEXT EFFORT WITH TUNNEY

New York—(AP)—Jack Dempsey plans to make another effort to regain his heavyweight crown from Gene Tunney next summer. Tex Rickard said Thursday he had received a telegram from Dempsey to that effect. The promoter believes the former champion still is the greatest drawing card of the ring.

gloves when he entered Stanford University, the title has been vacant officially.

In spite of other unfortunate experiences in filling vacancies by elimination tournaments, the New York commission sounded a call for all the contenders to enter a tournament and they all entered but Newsboy Brown, one of the many boys in the stable of the astute Leo Flynn.

When the tournament had been completed Schwartz and Frankie Genaro, Olympic champion in 1920 and former world's champion, were considered to be the outstanding competitors for the title.

Instead of recognizing Genaro, the commission passed one of its peculiar resolutions and ordered Schwartz and Brown to meet for the championship. The violent protest of Joe Jacobs, Genaro's manager, was futile and Brown got the call.

Admitting the quality of Genaro's record, the boxing sharps around Broadway felt, however, that Brown would make a better fight even if he didn't bother to enter the tournament, as Genaro undoubtedly has gone back and is not the fighter he was.

Brown and Schwartz are both hitters, while Genaro always was more of a boxer.

BADGERS, ILLINI HEAD HAWKEYE'S ATHLETIC RIVALS

Meet Nine Times in Winter, Spring; Iowa Plans 42 Big Ten Duals

Iowa City, Ia.—Illinois and Wisconsin will be the most persistent rivals of University of Iowa teams in seven sports during this winter and next spring, a survey of the schedules indicates.

For the Hawkeye teams will meet those of the Illini and Badger nine times in dual contests. With Illinois, a pair of basketball games, baseball contests, and track meets have been arranged in addition to clashes in swimming, tennis, and wrestling.

Two basketball and baseball games, a track meet, and competition in swimming, wrestling, and gymnastics will bring together Iowa and Wisconsin athletes.

Minnesota ranks third among the Big Ten rivals of the Hawkeyes, for the Gophers will be met in seven contests. These include two basketball and baseball games, a swimming, wrestling, and tennis meet.

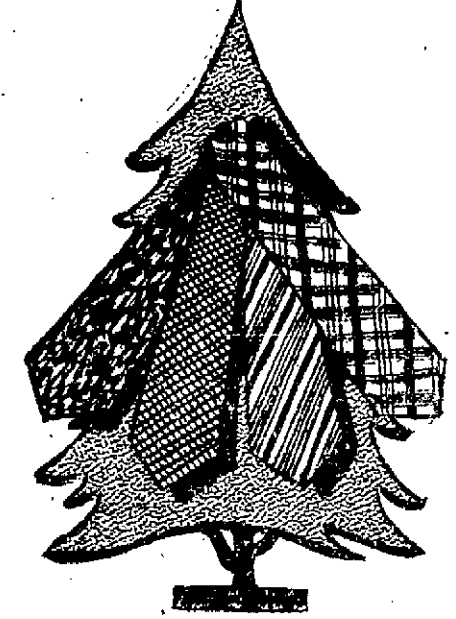

Before commencement in June, Iowa teams will have played every other western conference university in some branch of athletics with the exception of Ohio State. Other institutions to send teams against the Iowans are Northwestern, five, Indiana, four; Michigan and Chicago, three; and Purdue, two. Forty-two contests with Big Ten teams have been scheduled. Iowa teams will compete in nine states—Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, Kansas, Indiana, Minnesota, Michigan, Georgia, and Pennsylvania or Maryland.

Meadville, Pa.—(AP)—Joey Kovacs, Pittsburgh, won from Johnny "Kid" Blair, Utica, N. Y., (10.)

COATED PAPER QUINT WHIPS NEENAH CAGERS

Playing without the services of four regulars, the Appleton Coated Paper Co. basketball team a leader in the local industrial cage loop, still was able to take a easy victory from the Neenah Kimberly-Clark Co. quintet Tuesday evening at Roosevelt high gymnasium at Neenah, 31-24. Trailing at the half, 14-12, the Coated men opened up with a fast start, scoring and led by classy shooting by Reetz, staged a strong comeback to take the 10-point victory over the husker Neenah aggregation. A good defense also proved a big aid to the Appleton five in the final periods.

At no period of the game until the final quarter was there more than a four-point margin between the teams. In the final period the Appleton men scored six baskets in quick succession. Not a foul was called the entire game, the battle being the cleanest in Roosevelt gymnasium this year. Appleton was minus the services of Kneip, Stevens, Eggert and Kuntz, while Neenah missed its regular center.

Reetz was the star of the game with nine ringers to his credit for more than half of his team's points, scoring from all parts of the floor. Muenster added four baskets and Gaertner and Behnke led the Neenah quint with four and three baskets, respectively. Last week the Neenah men beat the Citizens Bank five, another Appleton Industrial League leader, 23-21, and the Neenah men still have games with the Weber Cozy Knits and the Kaukauna Cubs of the league in the next two weeks.

Coated Papers—Reetz, c, 9 baskets; Muenster, Jr, 4; Solinger, Jr, 1; Bowers, Jr, 2; Haase, Jr, 1.

Wisconsin Is Greatest As Trapshooting State

BY JIMMY ROBINSON

Wisconsin has enjoyed a great trapshooting season. Thirty state contests were held in the state this year with the greatest average attendance recorded by any state this season. At these target matches some great scores were turned in can be seen by the averages just released for the 1927 year. R. S. Peotter, Milwaukee, wins the season high average title. His mark is 3704 on 1050 clay targets.

Peotter is a greatly improved shot. He finished the 1926 season with 93 per cent. L. D. Frant, Milwaukee, takes second honors on the state high average roll. Shooting at 2850 targets he has recorded an average of .9621. Frant is a great all-around target smasher. At the 1927 Wisconsin state shoot he broke 197 out of 200 in the state championship race which gave him runner up position. Billett of Oconomowoc, won the title with 193. Frant earned away the all-around championship at the state shoot with 370 out of 400. He is the high average handicap shooter of the Badger state for the season with 90 per cent on 550 targets.

Claude Olney, West Allis, known the country over as an expert at the traps takes third honors in the state. Olney averages 554 on nearly 5000 targets. He is the best doubles place on the State high average honor roll. Doc Averages, 4108 on 1450 clay targets. F. S. Cook is high average lady shooter of the state. She averages 80 per cent on 1025 targets. A. J. Wagner, Beloit, follows Cook on the high average list. Wagner's mark is .9405 on 1900 targets. Wagner tied for the state championship last season with 196 hits out of 200. He was defeated in the shoot off. He won the state all-around championship in 1926.

Guy V. Dering, Columbus, president of the Amateur Trapshooting Association, has won more National trapshooting titles than any Badger state gunner. Dering has knocked off three national victories. Dering's first big win was in 1910 when he won the North American Clay Target championship at Chicago. In 1915 at Chicago he won the doubles world's title and at the Grand American this year, which was the greatest Grand American ever staged, he won the

GIRL BOWLERS ROLL 1,130 GAME IN MATCH

The highest team score ever rolled by a girls' pin quint in this vicinity, is believed to be the record established last week by the Jolly Five Keglers of Appleton in a match with a male squad on the Little Chute alleys. In one game of a three-game match with the men, the local girls each scored a 200 game the lowest being, 229 and the highest 265, for a 1130 total. The girls won two matches and lost a third by 28 pins.

The girls were aided by a 600 pin handicap in the match, but with their excellent bowling it would not have been needed, as with it they won the match by 845 pins. Without it they would have won by 245 mapsles. A. Siginsky of the ladies squad had high games of the match, a score that even the best male bowlers can envy, a 268 and even the lowest score of her team mates was a high male score, 245. A teammate, H. Glasnap, had high series of 531. For the men, F. Hammen had high game of 192 and P. Kostke had high series of 527.

The girls 200 scores:

L. Dunn, 229; L. Austin, 229; H. Glasnap, 237; E. Plugel, 267; A. Siginsky, 268.

FORMER APPLETON GIRL BATTLES IN MILWAUKEE

Virginia Mercereau, whose name outside the wrestling game is Marie Didderech and who formerly called Appleton her home, will appear in an extra bout on the mat card which will be staged by the South Side A. C. at the South Side armory in Milwaukee Sunday afternoon. Her opponent will be the Charles Peterson, the Chicago Swede.

Paul Martinson, the tough Dane, has been selected to give Hans Steink a tussle in the semi-windup. Martinson is one of the toughest fellows in the business, but the powerful Steink, challenger for the heavyweight championship of the world, is not expected to have much trouble with him. Both men have grappled here and Steink was a favorite with local fans.

Miss Mercereau is a claimant of the women's match championship of the world.

Wladek Zbyszko and Jim Ballas, the big Greek, will meet in the feature event.

FISHERMEN SCOUT IN PLANE

Fishermen in Choshi, Japan, have jointly purchased a hydroplane to be used by its scouts in searching for schools of fish. The fishermen say that fish can be located from the air much easier than from the water. The fishing fleets will be directed from the air hovefor as war vessels are now directed by naval aircraft.

ARMY, NAVY MAY SPLIT ON ELIGIBILITY RULES

New York (AP)—Army's refusal to accept the three-year eligibility rule invoked by the Navy threatened trouble in the football relations of the service forces of the country Thursday.

Although the Naval academy had requested the Army athletic authorities to draw the three-year line on players in future competition, Major General Edwin R. Winnans, superintendent of the military academy, approved the West Point advisory council's recommendation to the effect that the rules governing eligibility would not be subject to further change.

Locking any official statement from West Point on the matter, Rear Admiral Louis M. Nelson, superintendent of the Naval academy, declined to comment.

The BENSON MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE © CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Vance prevents Markham from arresting Leacock when Pyle's story implicates the captain. It is brought out that Pyle had been in Alvin Benson's power because of a forged check. Leacock confesses to the murder, but Vance exposes the confession as a lie to shield Miss St. Clair. Vance prevails upon Markham to question Mrs. Platz once more.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER XLVIII
"I know, Markham, our so-called civilization is neither more than the persistent destruction of everything that's beautiful and enduring, and the designing of cheap makeshifts. You should read Oswald Spengler's 'Untergang des Abendlandes'—a most penetrating document. I wonder some enterprising publisher hasn't embalmed it in our native art."
"The whole history of this dozen-ate era we call modern civilization can be seen in our woodwork. Look at that fine old door, for instance, with its beveled panels and ornamented collection, and its Ionic pilasters and carved lintel. And then compare with the flat, flimsy, machine-made, shellacked boards which are turned out by the thousand today. Sic transit."

Vance studied the door for some time; then turned abruptly back to Mrs. Platz, who was eyeing him curiously and with mounting apprehension.
"What did Mr. Benson do with the box of jewels when he went out to dinner?" he asked.
"Nothing, sir," she answered nervously. "He left them on the table there."
"Did you see them after he had gone?"
"Yes; and I was going to put them away. But I decided I'd better not touch them."
"And nobody came to the door, or entered the house, after Mr. Benson left?"
"No, sir."
"You're quite sure?"
"I'm positive sir."

Vance rose, and began to pace the floor. Suddenly, just as he was passing the woman, he stopped and faced her.
"Was your maiden name Hoffman, Mrs. Platz?"
The thing she had been dreading had come. Her face paled, her eyes opened wide, and her lower lip drooped a little.
Vance stood looking at her, not unkindly. Before she could regain control of herself, he said:
"I had the pleasure of meeting your charming daughter recently."
"My daughter.....?" the woman managed to stammer.

"Miss Hoffman, you know—the attractive young lady with the blond hair, Mr. Benson's secretary?"
The woman sat erect and spoke through clamped teeth.
"She's not my daughter."
"Now, now, Mrs. Platz," Vance chided her, as if speaking to a child. "Why, this foolish attempt at deception? You remember how worried you were when I accused you of having a personal interest in the lady who was here to tea with Mr. Benson? You were afraid I thought it was Miss Hoffman. But why should you be anxious about her, Mrs. Platz? I'm sure she's a very nice girl. And you really can't blame her for preferring the name of Hoffman to that of Platz. Platz means generally a place, though it also means a crash or an explosion; and sometimes a Platz is a bun or a yeast-cake. But a Hoffman is a courtier—much nicer than being a yeast-cake, what?"

He smiled engagingly, and his manner had a quieting effect upon her. "It isn't that, sir," she said, looking at him appealingly. "I made her take the name. In this country any girl who's smart can get to be a lady, if she's given a chance. And..."
"I understand perfectly," Vance interposed pleasantly. "Miss Hoffman is clever, and you feared that the fact of your being a housekeeper, if it became known, would stand in the way of her success. So you eliminated yourself, as it were, for her welfare. I think it was very generous of you. Your daughter lives alone?"
"Yes, sir—in Morningside Heights. But I see her every week." Her voice was barely audible.

"Of course—as often as you can, I'm sure.... Did you take the position as Mr. Benson's housekeeper because she was his secretary?"
She looked up, a bitter expression in her eyes.
"Yes, sir—I did. She told me the kind of man he was; and he often made her come to the house here in the evenings to do extra work."

HARRY LONG
Moving—Handling—Crating

dent that the new facts educed by the interview with Mrs. Platz troubled him considerably.
Vance sat smoking dreamily, turning his head now and then to inspect the buildings we passed.
We drove east through Forty-eighth street, and when we came abreast of the New York Bible Society House he ordered the chauffeur to stop, and insisted that we admire it.
"Christianity," he remarked, "has almost vindicated itself by its architecture alone. With few exceptions, the only buildings in this city that are not eyesores, are the churches and their allied structures."
"The American aesthetic credo is: Whatever's big is beautiful. These depressing gargantuan boxes with rectangular holes in 'em, which are called skyscrapers, are worshipped by Americans simply because they're huge. A box with 40 rows of holes is twice as beautiful as a box with 20 holes. Simple formula, what?"
Look at this little five-story affair across the street. It's infinitely lovelier—and more impressive, too—than any skyscraper in the city."
Vance referred but once to the crime during our ride to the club, and then only indirectly.
"Kind hearts, you know, Markham, are more than coronets. I've done a good deed today, and I feel positively virtuous. Frau Platz will sleep much better tonight. She has been frightfully upset about little Gretchen. She's a doughty old soul; both 'ly and all that. And she couldn't bear to think of the future Lady Vere de Vere being suspected. . . . Wonder why she worried so?" And he gave Markham a sly look.
Nothing further was said until after dinner, which we ate in the Roof Garden. We had pushed back our chairs, and sat looking out over the tree-tops of Madison Square.
"Now, Markham," said Vance, "give over all prejudices, and consider the situation judiciously—as you lawyers euphemistically put it. . . . To begin with, we now know why Mrs. Platz was so worried at your question regarding fire-arms, and why she was upset by my reference to her personal interest in Benson's companion. So, those two mysteries are eliminated."
"How did you find out about her relation to the girl?" interjected Markham.
"Twas my ogling did it," Vance gave him a reproving look. "You recall that I 'ogled' the young lady at our first meeting—but I forgive you. . . . And you remember our little discussion about cranial idiosyncrasies?"
"Miss Hoffman, I noticed at once, possessed all the physical formations of Benson's housekeeper. She was brachycephalic; she had over-articulated cheek-bones; an orthognathous jaw, a low flat parietal structure, and a mesorrhinian nose. . . . Then I looked for her ear, for I had noted that Mrs. Platz had the pointed, lobeless, 'satyr' ear—sometimes called the Darwin ear. IMPROVEMENTS FOR ST. MARY CEMETERY

Landscaping, New Fence and Filling of Ravines Part of 1928 Schedule

Erection of an $8,000 fence and re-surfacing of the drives and walks are among the improvements completed at St. Mary cemetery during the last few months. Plans for next year include erection of a fence around the remainder of the cemetery and filling several of the ravines and ditches on the property. It is also planned to plant new shrubbery in the spring. The new fence is 1,100 feet long and given to the cemetery by George

ENROLL FOR COURSE IN STUDY OF SLIDE RULE

Twenty-two persons have already signified their intention of enrolling in the short course in use of the slide rule which will be given at the night school of Appleton Vocational school beginning the new semester next month. The course should be of interest to draftsmen, engineers, designers, contractors, salesmen and estimators. It is planned to give six lessons covering theory of the slide rule, multiple division, square root, and percentage. Cards are being sent out to persons who might be interested in it. Work and each is requested to sign a card on which it will be most convenient to attend the classes. Any interested in the course might also confer with Edward P. Chandler, principal of the night school.

WAUKESHA FARMER DEVELOPS NEW TYPE OF ALFALFA PLANT

EXPECTS TO OBTAIN ABUNDANT SEED AS EXPERIMENT RESULT

Selects Plants Carefully and Uses Device to Regulate Fertilization

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

According to Peter C. Swartz, Waukesha, one of the largest and most successful growers of alfalfa in Wisconsin, a new kind of an alfalfa plant is in process of development on his farms, giving promises of producing alfalfa seed abundantly each year.

Up to this time, the cost of alfalfa seed has one of the greatest drains on the alfalfa grower's purse, and, if he attempted to do away with the expense by raising seed himself, he might be partially successful one year and unsuccessful for several years. The new seed may be as reliable as any other kind now raised on Wisconsin farms.

In his investigation of alfalfa plants and alfalfa blossoms to discover the processes of seed production, Mr. Swartz discovered that some plants produced seed every year and that other plants did so when a tongue-like petal in the blossom closed over the stigma, the result of coming in contact with moving object, alive or inanimate.

WATCHED GROWTH

This discovery led Mr. Swartz to mark plants in his field that he found loaded with seed and to watch the marked plants year after year. He found that seed production was a habit of the plants he had marked. He now has sixty or more of these seed-bearing plants. During the blossoming time, Mr. Swartz puts hoods which admit light but prevent cross-fertilization over these plants to properly test the inherent reproductive powers of the plants. His experiments have been very successful.

After his discovery that no alfalfa blossom bore seed if the tongue-like petal did not close down of its own accord or as a result of some external stimulus that all other alfalfa blossoms bore seed, he began the petal gently, he snapped down from an erect to a curved position, Mr. Swartz constructed a mechanical beater something like the reel of grain binder in its operation and used this machine on an alfalfa to close the petals. As a result of the use of this machine, he has been able to increase the yield of his alfalfa field.

Mr. Swartz is enthusiastic over the results of his experiments and expects before long to be able to produce an alfalfa seed that can be depended upon to produce seed year after year on Wisconsin soil, or a method to force regular alfalfa fields to produce seed.

DUCE URGES FARMERS TO TILL MORE LAND

Rome—(AP)—"The Duce Commands" and "The Country Calls Upon You" appear at the head of large posters plastered over Rome on vacant walls, calling upon farmers of Italy to increase production and to use new methods and cultivate every tillable acre so that Italy need not keep on importing grain.

The posters were put up to call attention to a great agricultural show here at which the best methods of fertilization were shown, labor-saving farm implements were demonstrated, and prize crops were exhibited to show farmers what can be raised when land is properly cultivated.

The appeal and the exhibition are regarded as likely to result in the cultivation of hundreds of idle acres and in the planting of better seed.

FIND GLASS HOUSES STUNT CHICKS' GROWTH

Topeka, Kas.—(AP)—Glass houses are not healthful for baby chicks.

Experiments by poultry breeders here proved that glass windows on chicken brooders shut out the ultra-violet rays from the sun and consequently stunt the growth of the chicks. Birds kept in brooders with glass windows attained in three months less than half the size of chickens in brooders having windows made of porous material, such as gunny sacks and wire screens. The chicks were from the same incubator setting and received the same food and the same ventilation.

MILK MAIDS LEARNING WITH DUMMY ANIMALS

London—(AP)—English boys and girls learning dairy farming may now practice milking on mechanical cows, exhibited at the national dairy show here.

Thus the novice learns the rudiments of the art without having his milk kicked over by a protesting cow.

The bovine robot is complete over to mechanical orders. The apparatus can be filled with actual milk.

Even on farms where mechanical milkers are used, hand milking is employed to give the finishing touches to the milking process.

BOY STABS GIRL AND SELF

Because their relatives did not approve of their love affair, Sato Gamo, a high school pupil at Tokyo, Japan, stabbed his sweetheart, Kaoru Hara, and himself, to sit down and die. They sat face to face. The youth first stabbed the girl, then ran himself through several times. He died at once, the girl several hours later.

Great Change In Badger Farming In Half Century

Wisconsin's agriculture has changed while it has grown since pioneer time. Sheep outnumbered hogs two to one in 1870. Today we have only 268,000 sheep, but hogs have increased to 1,612,000. Wool was a pioneer farm product. 7,016,491 pounds being marketed in 1880. Tobacco production rocketed from $7,340 pounds to $60,813 pounds between 1880 and 1890 when production was stimulated by curtailment of southern tobacco during the civil war. Sweet potatoes were grown by pioneer farmers, 2,222 bushels being produced in 1870 and 7,124 bushels in 1880. In 1890 farm draft work was performed by 38,625 work oxen and 116,150 horses. As late as 1880 "other cattle" outnumbered dairy cattle about three to two, with 622,005 of the former and 478,824 of the latter. While beef cattle were but a meagre increase, however, dairy cattle almost doubled in the next decade and that increase has been maintained. Wheat production reached its peak with 25,506,544 bushels in 1890.

Dairy development paralleled the decline in wheat from 1,248,000 acres in 1880 to 120,000 acres in 1925. Butter making outstripped cheese making in rate of increase from 1850 to 1880. In the latter year butter production exceeded cheese production about fifteen to one, but today cheese outranks butter almost two to one.

A point of seasonal interest: Wisconsin ranks third in cranberry production with about 50,000 barrels of $400,000 annually. With Massachusetts and New Jersey, we produce most of the nation's cranberry supply.

FLOOD WATERS HELP SPREAD ADVANCE OF EUROPEAN CORN PEST

Situation Alarms State and Federal Agencies in Battle on Borer

South Bend, Ind.—Flood waters in the rivers of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, draining into the Ohio, the Wabash, Illinois, Mississippi rivers and into Lake Michigan are now threatening a spread of the dreaded European Corn Borer into the corn belt during the present winter.

Officials of the federal department of agriculture, of the agricultural extension forces and of the state control forces of the three states are frankly alarmed over the situation. The corn borer is now definitely "over the divide." For the first time since the scourge struck North America flood drainage waters are likely to carry infested stalks into the corn belt of Illinois, Missouri and Wisconsin and thus hasten the advance over the great corn granary of the world.

The remaining funds of the $10,000,000 appropriation made by congress last winter are now being used to prevent this advance so far as it can be done. Orders have gone out to the federal and state forces that are fighting the borer to concentrate their immediate efforts upon the cleaning up of the 15,000 acres or more of corn lands that is within reach of the flood waters draining to the south and west.

DESTROY CORN STALKS

"Clean-up" in the language of the corn borer fighters means the removal and destruction of all corn stalks and the plowing under of the stubble in the fields. This is the only effective way known to prevent the maturing of the borer into the moth which in turn lays the eggs for the new brood of next year.

Where corn has been cut off and the stalks cut into the soil or shredded by hoes for winter feed, the destruction job is well under way. It is the broken stalks in the field, short pieces that commonly would be overlooked, or standing stalks broken loose from their roots, that offer the easiest means of spreading the pest on floods. Wrapped up in their winter cells inside the stalks, the foreign invaders can float for hundreds of miles, be submerged in water for days, or be frozen in ice for much of the winter without injury to their vitality and ability to reproduce. Government experiments show that stalks have floated more than 200 miles on river crests.

FREEZING IS FUTILE

Experiments with borers frozen in ice have shown the great majority of them alive at the end of 60 days. Submerged in experimental cages under water, other worms of the corn borer have emerged in 30 days prepared to live and "carry on". It is this hardness of the corn borer that makes its dispersal into new territory easy in flood times.

Federal and state authorities have succeeded with the cooperation of the farmers in having some of these borer lands cleared off and plowed under this fall. The high water of the last few weeks, however, has flooded out many of the low ground corn fields and created an unexpected danger.

It is feared that some stalks have already been washed out from infested territory that may carry live borers hundreds of miles distant to create new points of infestation and thus hasten the spread to the corn states west of Indiana and the cotton states to the south. What the history of the corn borer will be when it reaches the cotton, corn and rice states of the south cannot be conjectured.

Secretary Jardine of the department of agriculture, has announced that the extra compensation of $2 per acre to farmers who clean up their corn land according to the government and state regulations will be paid on these bottom land fields out of the funds still remaining from the $10,000,000 appropriation.

Suspecting that the recent figures obtained by the Japanese government regarding the position of labor were made favorable to capitalists, the Farmer-Labor Federation is taking a special census of Japanese labor.

HEALTH MENACE TO MILLIONS IN SMALL TOWN MILK SUPPLY

American Child Association Survey Finds Methods Still in Infancy

BY JOHN L. COOLEY

New York—(AP)—Unpasteurized, dirty milk constitutes a menace to the health of the 25,000,000 people living in the so-called small towns of the United States, a survey completed by the American Child association indicates.

"If we may use milk supply control as an indication of sanitary development," says Dr. Samuel J. Crumblin, general executive of the Association, "health department practice of the small town is still in its infancy. Its milk supply is little better in sanitary quality than it would have been if the process of pasteurization had never been discovered. The initial high bacterial count of the milk is increased by failure to ice the supply, and protection of danger from infection by men and cattle is not prevented by pasteurization."

SURVEY CONDITIONS

Dr. Crumblin and Dr. Dorothy F. Holland, a staff associate, obtained information on the milk supplies of 142 small towns and cities regarded as representative of the entire country. Ninety-seven of the 117 communities giving data on the extent of pasteurization reported that they were taking no such precaution. None had 40 per cent or more of its milk supply pasteurized.

"The results of the bacteriological analyses indicate immediate need for effective milk control," Dr. Crumblin asserts. "An average of 22 per cent of the supplies examined contained 200,000 or more bacteria per cubic centimeter; an average of 40 per cent of the supplies examined contained 100,000 or more bacteria per cubic centimeter. Fifty-one cities gave a positive test for the bacteria present in cow manure in 30 per cent or more,

21 cities a positive test in 75 per cent or more of their supplies examined. "The milk supplies were on the whole dirty, according to physical standards. In only two of the towns and cities tested were 75 per cent or more of the supplies subjected to the sediment test found to be 'clean' or 'fairly clean.' Only 19 cities had 50 per cent or more of their supplies 'clean' or 'fairly clean.'"

ROOM TO IMPROVE

"In 109 of the towns and cities surveyed none of the supplies examined were iced. Only nine cities had 50 per cent or more of their supplies iced, and in 71 cities more than half of the milk was being delivered at temperatures of over 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

"The condition in large cities presents a striking contrast. Thirty of 61 cities of over 100,000 population reported 90 per cent or more of their supplies pasteurized. But even the large city falls short of the goal, 100 per cent pasteurization, which must be attained if we are to have a safe milk supply."

"The danger of infection of consumers by tuberculous cattle is a real one in the places covered by the survey," Dr. Crumblin declares. "Only 43 per cent of the cities reported that the cattle supplying their milk had been tuberculin tested within a year."

PARIS HAIRDRESSERS BUSY

Hairstylists for women are scarce in Paris and are waxing rich. Although they are the highest paid workmen in France there is a dearth of competent trimmers of lady's locks. "I can get any number of barbers for shaving men, but I cannot get the right man for attending to women," said the proprietor of one Paris shop employing 50 people. "My assistants in the women's salon earn the equivalent of from $10.50 to $15.75 a day. They drive to and from their country homes in their own automobiles. The charge for permanent waving is now $10. of which the assistant gets $4, and a notice warns customers that the minimum tip expected is $1. But the Parisienne is so lavish that if she only has a $1.25 hair-wash she gives a $1.25 tip."

BACON HOGS NEEDED ON WISCONSIN FARMS

Lard Types More Common in State—Can Increase Supply Without Loss

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

R. A. Kolb, Chelsea, an expert in the care and raising of hogs and a farm institute conductor is out telling hog raisers of Wisconsin that inasmuch as the hog population of Wisconsin is only 5 per cent of the hog population of the United States any increase or decrease of hogs will have no effect on the prices. In considering pork production, the Wisconsin farmer should keep in mind the proper balance of his farm industries and utilization of the by-product of his dairy business. In comparing the lard and the bacon types of hogs, Mr. Kolb prefers the latter type. As a large percentage of pigs are lost at the time of farrowing and later through disease, he suggests precautionary measures and sanitary practices in hog pens and hog lots.

"The Wisconsin farmer in considering pork production should concern himself with a proper balance of his own farm business, having in mind: First, the cycle of pork prices in America; second, good farm management means a proper balance of our various enterprises, and it is hard to conceive of properly conducted dairy farms without a proper number of hogs to consume the by-products; third, we watch the markets and we find that hog prices move in a fairly regular cycle of about four years' duration. In other words, prices will advance for a period of two years, reach a peak, and then recede for a period of two years. This cycle may be influenced by outside factors but it nevertheless is fairly regular," said Mr. Kolb.

"We have two distinct types of hogs, known as the lard type and the bacon or meat type. The former is the result of the corn belt conditions where the extensive growing of corn has built an industry and a type of hog, all its own. The Wisconsin farmer has adopted this type, but not in all cases have his conditions been suited to the economical production of the lard hog. Moreover, the imports of mineral and vegetable oils into the industries and the appetite of the American consumer, public has brought about a change in the demand for pork and its products. Today the Wisconsin farmer may well consider the desirability of producing the bacon hog instead of the lard hog for the corn belt."

SPLENDID COSTUMES BIG FEATURE OF CHRISTMAS PLAYS

Schools Putting Unusual Efforts into Entertainment for Wednesday Night

Kaukauna—Elaborate costumes will be a feature of the two Christmas plays, "The Nativity" and "Christmas in Merrie Englands," to be presented by a cast of 110 students from the city grade schools and the high school in the high school auditorium on Wednesday evening, Dec. 21.

Most of the costumes were made in the high school domestic science department under the direction of Miss Anna Gibbons. Approximately $100 will be spent by the school for costumes.

Miss Eleanor Wooster, city supervisor of music, under whose supervision the two plays are being produced, has emphasized that these musical plays are different from the usual Christmas program and take considerable more time to prepare. Practically all the teachers in the grade schools are assisting.

For the musical play, "The Nativity," most of the costumes have been copied from paintings by Perugino and Rosellino and are of the early Renaissance period. Miss Wooster stated that it is necessary for the costumes and lighting effects to be perfect to secure the necessary atmosphere for the plays. The styles range from the first play from dull brown tunics, earth colored tunics, orange, blue, purple and red tunics to the beautiful costumes of the kings which are done in stencil work. Those worn by the Moorish kings are a dull red.

The costumes for the second play, "Christmas in Merrie Englands," are much more elaborate and have been taken from the Elizabethan period of English history. The increase in beauty of costumes is necessary because of the many dances, old carols and masques in the play. Shades of blue, lavender, purple predominate in the masque. Pages are dressed in pure white, queens in white and lavender, French ministers in blue, and huntsmen in green.

Among the costumes to be rented are those of "Father Christmas" and the character, "Roast Beef." One outstanding group of dresses is worn by the Yule Log girls in the Yule Log dance. Miss Beryl Hilborne, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. T. Parker Hilborne of this city will sing one of the famous noels of early history, "O Christmas Tree." Other songs, "O Christmas Tree" and "O Christmas Tree" will feature "Christmas in Merrie Englands" will be the "Boat's Head" carol and the "Wassail" song.

HOLD-UP MEN TAKE $56 FROM OPERATOR OF FILLING STATION

Bandits Use Gun to Convince Forrest Mitchell to Give Up His Money

Kaukauna—Forrest Mitchell, operator of the north side Mayer filling station, was held up and robbed of $56 in a bold hold-up at the station about 9:30 Wednesday evening. The station is at the corner of Desnoyers and Wisconsin-ave. Mr. Mitchell had just closed the station and was in his car, which was parked close to the station, when two men jumped upon his running board. One of them asked Mr. Mitchell when the next car left for Appleton and after answering them the filling station operator noticed that the man who was doing the talking was fooling with the door of the car. He asked him what he was doing and the man said, "Come now, no fooling, open the door and do it snappy" and at the same time he emphasized his words by pounding an automatic on the door. Mr. Mitchell saw there was nothing else to do but comply with the man's request and then he was told to hand over the money he had with him.

The police department was notified but up until Thursday morning could find no trace of the two men. After leaving Mitchell the men ran in back of the Kaukauna Bargain store and from there supposedly to Doty-st. where it is thought a car was waiting for them.

Evidently the men had some knowledge of the operations at the filling station for they waited until Mitchell was ready to leave before attempting the holdup. As near as the filling station operator could remember the taller of the two men and the one doing the talking wore a dark overcoat and cap and a white muffler while the other had on a mackinaw and storm cap. Mitchell believes both were boots.

TO LIVE LONG WILL KEEP BUSY
Because he wants to live a long time, Sir Alfred Yarrow, founder of the famous Yarrow shipbuilding firm of Glasgow, Scotland, will not rest, he declared, on his resignation as president recently. "I will be 86 next January," he stated, "and although I am in good health it is rather difficult to keep up steam in an old boiler. So many public and social duties claim my attention that I must give up something, and I prefer to give up that which carries practical responsibility. Anyone who has led an active life, and suddenly retiring, ceases all kinds of activity, soon dies. What I am after is occupation without responsibility, and that I think is a wise thing for a person who is advanced in years to aim at."
